3 towns, 3 threads

Three threads
so close in distance
but seemingly worlds apart in almost every other aspect,
so many contrasts.
The first
so big, packed with people, millions,
museums, theaters, concerts,
zoos, restaurants,
so much to do.
The second
so small, the antithesis of the first,
conservative, rural, old-line,
the boonies.
The third
so unlike the others, some call it quaint,
one theater, one main street, one high school, growing, developing, old and new,
Valparaiso.

1. Valparaiso's only movie theater is the Premier, owned and operated by Shauer's since 1921.
2. Reflecting the small-town quaintness of Kouts, Indiana, this rustic train station epitomizes rural America.
3. To satisfy the need for food and companionship, the Koffee Kup Restaurant provides the people of Kouts with a quiet place to eat and talk.
4. Presiding over Midwestern culture is Chicago's Art Institute, located on hectic Michigan Avenue.
5. When three and a half million people decide to go home at the same time, traffic jams such as this one on Jackson Avenue result.
6. Like every other American city, Valparaiso has its hangout frequented by most teenagers, the Burger King, located on E. Lincolnway.

Intersect, intertwine

Texture
more contrast, more variation.
The first
so many stores, so rich, so expensive plush
sweaty, grimy, noisy, industry.
The second
a drugstore, a dairy, a grocery, home-grown tomatoes
up by five, plowing, planting, agriculture.
The third
one department store, small shops, a few restaurants, nothing really fancy,
commuters, farmers, small businessmen,
Valparaiso.

1. The pride of downtown Valparaiso is Lowenstines department store, decorated and ready for the holiday shopping rush.
2. Although only a short distance from Valparaiso, Inland Steel's Indiana Harbor plant is a very different — but familiar — sight to many Valparaiso commuters.
3. Seemingly lost in a sea of large merchants, downtown Kouts finds it difficult to compete with the area's large shopping centers.
4. The backbone of the rural economy, an Indiana cornfield awaits the fall harvest.
5. With stores, people, and entertainment in abundance, another Friday night on Chicago's State Street gets under way.

Patterns, places

The style
woven together, but how?
The first
jam-packed, pushed together, cramped-up, high-rise living
hustle and bustle, hubbub, squeeze, mass transportation.
The second
old, rambling, homey, rural charm
gritting, grinding, bringing in the sheaves, the farm machine.
The third
nostalgic, pre-fab, contemporary,
a hodgepodge
buses squeak, trucks roar, cars moan, Valparaiso.

1. Downtown Valparaiso's main street, Lincolnway, is open on a week night for the convenience of Christmas shoppers.
2. Totally dependent on the power of the farm machine to harvest his crops is this northern Indiana farmer.
3. One of Valparaiso's many growing subdivisions is Concord Woods, developed by the Krughoff Company.
4. Typical of many Chicago housing complexes are the McClurg Apartments, located near the Art Institute.
5. Found east of Valparaiso on U.S. 30, this farmhouse combines rural architecture with subtle hints of contemporary design.
6. Chicago's South Shore Line provides thousands of commuters with daily transporation — without the traffic jams.

The buildings

The factories
where are these fabrics made?
The first
tough, turbulent, rough-and-tumble, red-hot boisterous, bursting with people, energy, inner city.
The second
easy-going, unpretentious, proud, relaxed
worn-out, antiquated, distinguished,
country class.
The third
rah-rah, spirit's back, go, Vikes, go, enthusiasm on the rise,
complex, spacious, windowless,
Valparaiso High School.

1. In its third year at the N. Campbell Street address, Valparaiso High School boasts an enrollment of 1432 students and 64 faculty members. VHS is Valparaiso's only high school.
2. Although plans for the construction of a new facility are underway, Wheeler High School continues to hold classes in its 53 year-old building.
3. Worn by the effects of polluted air, East Chicago Washington High School reflects the nature of its surroundings.

The loom

The loom
the machine from which thread is woven into cloth, a rather useless tool
until someone cares enough to utilize it to place each thread in its position in the design perhaps each one identical to the next or each one wildly different.
But the similarities and contrasts become almost indistinguishable
as the year progresses.
And few are seldom conscious of . . .
Weaving it into Valparaiso.

1. Spirit and crepe paper abound as VHS fires up for the Hobart football game.
2. Greaser Day brings bobby socks and long skirts back in style. Comparing Fifties fashions are Phyllis Glasser, Ann Gast, Belinda Robinson, and Laura Slingsby.
3. Performing in Foursome, one of three one-act plays sponsored by the Drama Club, are John Kurman, Jennifer Butt, and Doug Kashner.
4. Sophomores get into the act during October's Folk-Pop Concert as Jeff Roscoe, Marilee Lindemann, Michelle McGaffic, and Jim Moyer sing "All for the Best."
5. Sponsored by Campus Life, Under New Management makes its third appearance before the VHS student body.
6. As well as being a source of revenue for clubs, sock hops continue to be a popular social activity. Totally absorbed in the music is senior Jo-Ellen Murphy.

Vikes Rout Panthers 38-6 For Homecoming Win

Excitement and the hint of victory hung over a damp Viking Field September 20 as the Vikes took the turf against the Gary Roosevelt Panthers for the Homecoming game.

Bob Johnson's two touchdowns, along with tallies by Dan Wellsand, Mark Allen, and Bob Malackowski sparked the Vikes to a 38-6 romp over the visiting Panthers.

Halftime festivities began as the seven queen candidates and their escorts drove down the track through a light but steady mist to the band's strains of "You're Sixteen." Pep Club president Mindy Ohler crowned Sue Harrington queen and Danielle Baepler princess.

Twelve hard-working Pep Club members armed with tin foil and crepe paper transformed the gym's south balcony into a "Space Odyssey" for Saturday's dance. One hundred and fifty couples, attired in semi-formal garb, danced to the music of "City Limits."

1. The band and bright lights stimulate the radiant smile of this year's Homecoming queen, Sue Harrington.
2. Rich Johnson and Paula Brown enjoy the music of "City Limits" at the 29th annual Homecoming dance.

1. Tom Bixby, Mike Mehler, Dale Lamberson, and Tarik El-Naggar keep the Marching Viking Band in step as they perform "Grandioso March" in the Valparaiso University Homecoming parade.
2. Adding a little sparkle to an otherwise dark and rainy day, Laurie Shriver marches down Lincolnway with the VHS band.
3. After a hard offensive workout, Tom Yates takes a refreshing drink of cool water.

Crashing through the Gary Roosevelt defensive line, Bob Johnson goes in for a touchdown.

1. Dreaming of the pleasures of high society, Nancy Gunther and the dancing ensemble sing "Grant Avenue."
2. As the show begins at Sammy Fong's Celestial Bar, Frankie Wing, played by Terry Grindley, introduces the musical act.

Conflict Unites Clashing Views

The conflict between a father's grasp on his deep-rooted traditions and his son's struggle to break away from them in a new land sets the scene for Rogers and Hammerstein's musical, "Flower Drum Song," which VHS students presented in the summer of '74.

Due to the availability of spare time during summer vacation, the atmosphere of the choir-sponsored musical was more relaxed than most school productions. This allowed students more time to perfect their parts and also gave incoming sophomores a taste of working in high school drama.

"I liked having the freedom we had doing the musical during the summer," commented one cast member. "We seemed to get a lot done but I don't think anyone felt rushed for time."

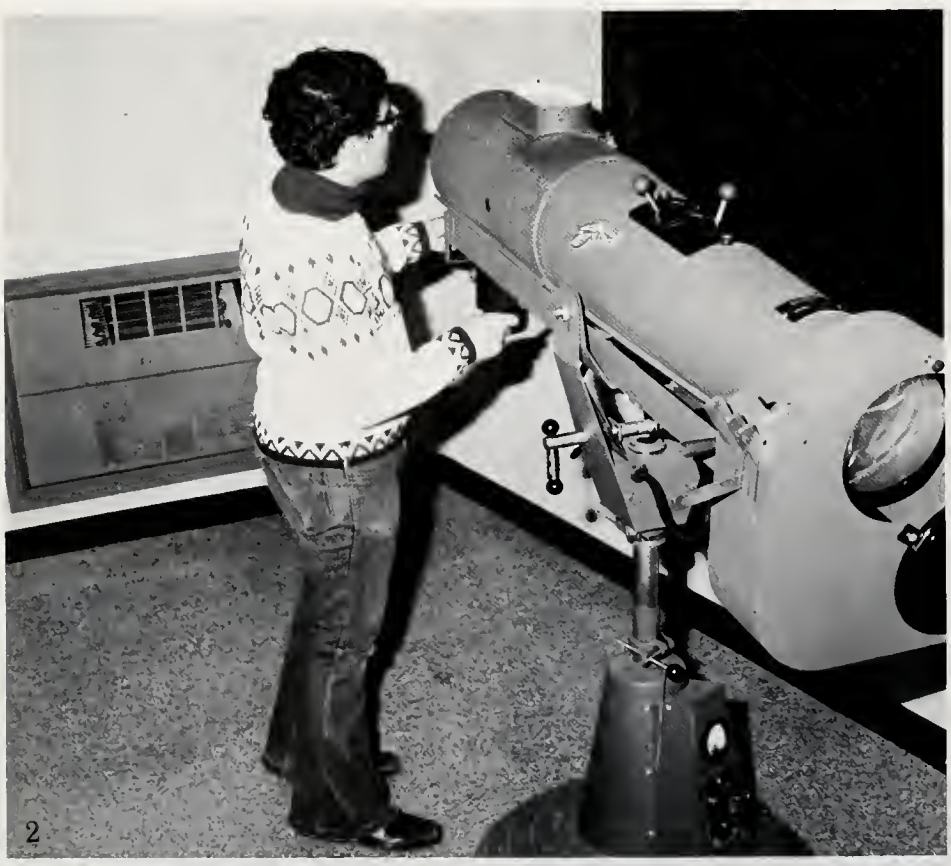
1. Wang Ta, portrayed by Jeff Roscoe, meekly asks Linda Low to marry him, not knowing that she's secretly dating Sammy Fong.
2. Looking forward to his marriage to Linda Low, Marty Gehring, as Sammy Fong, sings "Sunday."
3. Wang Chi Yang, along with other friends and relatives, celebrates the American Citizenship awarded to his sister, Madam Liang, in "Chop Suey."

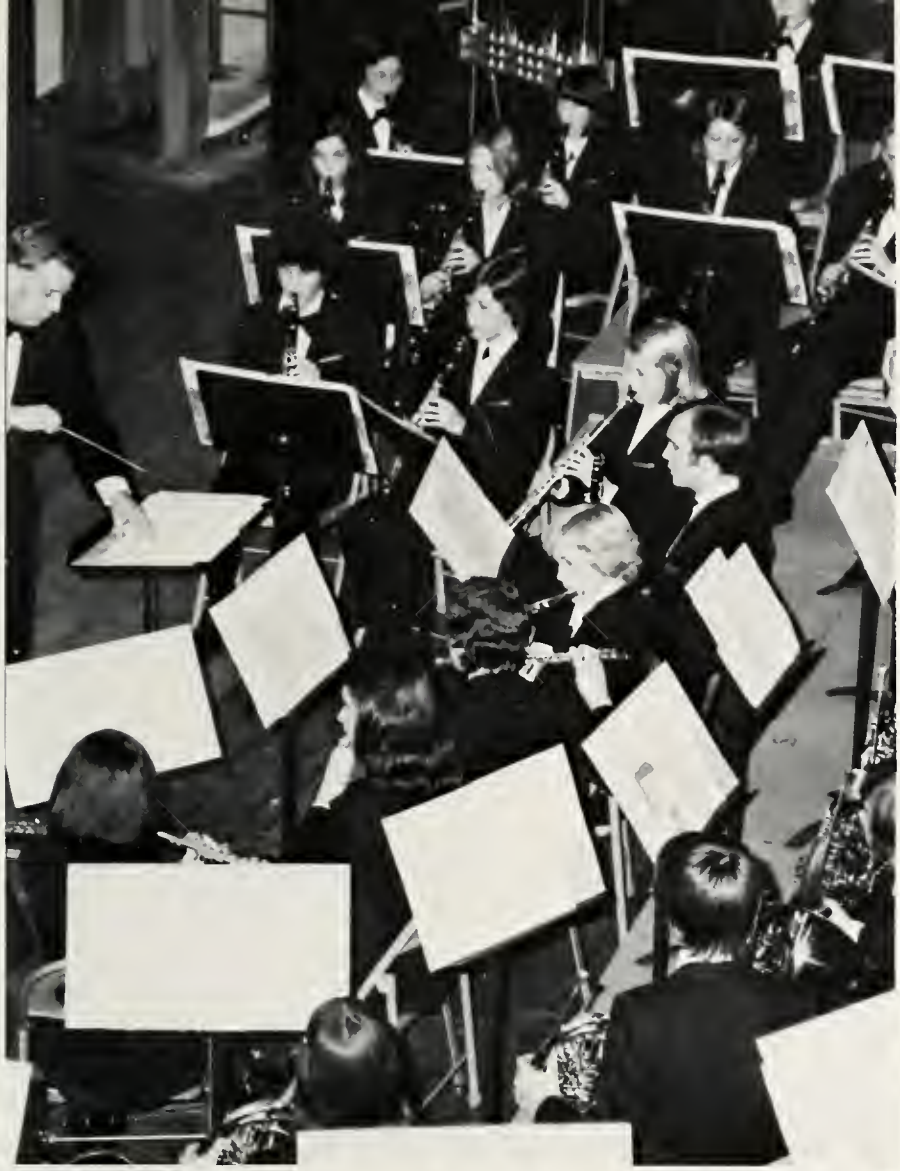
Concerts, Sockhops Overcome Mid-week, Week-end Boredom

Sockhops, which continued to gain popularity at VHS, usually found the gym's north balcony strewn with coats and shoes as students jammed onto the middle of the floor to dance to the earsplitting music of the performing band. Although the price was raised from $1.50 per couple to $1.00 per person because of increased band fees, they remained an inexpensive form of recreation. Held after football and basketball games, the average dance raised nearly two hundred dollars for the club sponsoring it.

VHS's bands and choirs also provided another form of student entertainment as they held Christmas and pre-contest concerts in the auditorium. Profits were put in band and choir funds and used toward repairs of worn equipment and the purchase of new instruments and costumes used in contests and public performances.

1. Making the most of ANA's music, Donna Breitzke boogies at a club-sponsored sockhop.
2. To help set the scene for the Christmas concert, Jerry Ortega runs the spotlight.
3. Sockhops continue to be a popular money-making activity at VHS. YARC member Ruby Lee collects the profits after the Chesterton football game.





1. Adding a little variety to the Christmas concert, the VHS symphonic band, under the direction of Mr. Robert Miller, performs the "American Civil War Fantasy."
2. The VHS A Choir, directed by Mr. Bernard Butt, gets ready to perform the classic 'Twas the Night before Christmas" at the Christmas concert.
3. Two of VHS's more enthusiastic dancers, Elaine Kaminski and Tim Silhavy, show off their dancing skills.

1. Ozark Mountain Cloggers Tom Harrington, Dale Lamberson, and Kurt Mussman supply entertainment during a scene change with "Hog Callin' Time in The Ozarks."
2. Shifting the mood of the program, Cheryl Hammons, Jan Haney, and Jane Calderazzo sing Jane's "Colossal Dreams."
3. "Magic To Do" gets underway as Marty Gehring opens the Drama Club's annual spring production.

Fantasy Draws Crowds To Student Production

Captivating its audience with music, comedy, and wizardry, April Antics cast members had "Magic To Do" in the annual Drama Club production April 18 and 19

Comedy skits such as "3-Act Play" and the Ozark Mountain Cloggers mingled with magic and music balanced the auditorium-held performances into enjoyable variety entertainment.

The Choir Department held its annual Folk-Pop Concert September 28. The two-act program featured student renditions of famous songs and also many original compositions.

1. Marty Gehring shows Phyllis Glasser that "Time To Go" is more than just a song in April Antics' closing act.
2. With dry ice furnishing the mist, Jon Costas gives his rendition of Led Zepellin's "Stairway To Heaven."
3. Tank tops, sandals, and cutoffs help Steve Tracy and Bill Reichard portray the Beach Boys singing "California Girls."
4. Soft lights set the scene as Joy Ronco performs an original composition entitled "Hey You" in the Folk-Pop Concert.

1. Jennifer Butt, as Lucy Van-Pelt, tries once and for all to rid her brother Linus, played by Steve Gibson, of his "disgusting blanket habit."
2. As Debbie Schirg assists, Doug Kashner makes an abortive attempt to save the life of Carol Fitzsimmons in "The Interview."
3. Squabbling over trivial matters, Doug Kashner and John Kurman show how petty people can be in Ionesco's "Foursome."
4. Linus disrupts the Peanuts gang's glee club rehearsal as he provokes Jennifer Butt and Patty, played by Laura Rasch.

Drama Boasts Eventful Year

Broadening its already full range of activities, the Drama Club performed the children's musical "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" for Valparaiso's elementary students.

"The students enjoyed doing it," stated the play's director Mrs. Alice Noble. "It was a challenge to put on a musical without any aid from the Music Department, but it went well."

"Charlie Brown's" popularity with children started a new trend for VHS drama. The favorable response it received prompted the club to make a children's production an annual event.

Another twist in drama activity was the fall production of three one-acts. The plays were abstracts portraying some of man's basic faults.

The club's active year provided students with a lot of good stage entertainment. "I enjoyed this year's plays," commented one VHS student. "The material was interesting and the productions showed care in the making." Although a lot of time was spent in preparing the productions, club members didn't consider it all hard work. "We put a lot of effort into the plays," commented Jennifer Walker, "but we had a good time doing it. I think it was worth it."

1. Taking time out from a baseball game, Charlie Brown, portrayed by Jeff Roscoe, enthusiastically writes a letter to his pen-pal, while Ed Bertholet's Schroeder impatiently looks on.

Dances Add Spark To Winter

Adding a little color to a sometimes long and humdrum winter, two of VHS's largest clubs, Student Council and V-Teens, sponsored winter dances.

Hanging Christmas trees and 25 pounds of artificial snow gave a festive atmosphere to the gym's south balcony for the Student Council-sponsored Christmas dance. Although late in arriving, "The Furman Davis Group" entertained the 134 attending couples nonstop for four hours.

In order to make a substantial contribution to the Heart Fund, V-Teens held their annual King of Hearts dance February 22. V-Teens' officers crowned John Ruge king and Jack Sawyer prince of the post-Valentine event.

"This year students selected candidates and later voted for king by contributing to the Heart Fund under his name," stated dance chairman Danielle Zecevich. "We were very pleased with student response to the idea."

1. King of Hearts Court — Shaun Evans, Carol Klemz, Prince Jack Sawyer, Danielle Zecevich, King John Ruge, Jennifer Crawford, Sue Thebo, Greg Galasso, Carol Smith, and Bill Conover. Attending them are Robby Mahoney and Martha Maiers.

2. With assistance from Candy Fero and Patty Clark, Carol Klemz decorates the south balcony for the King of Hearts dance.

3. Taking advantage of an uncrowded dance floor, Wendy Garwood and Bob Lembke dance to the music of Sahara.

1. Donna Snyder and Amy Halter add to the festivities of the Christmas dance as they escort Santa Claus (Mr. Sid Reggie) to his sleigh.
2. Posing in front of the Christmas backdrop, Brenda Pauley and Royal Church have their dance portrait taken.
3. As the band takes a break at the King of Hearts dance, Mike Kloss, Marianne McCord, Carolyn Schnure, and Mark Allen take time out for refreshments.

1. Donna Furman, portraying the cowardly lion, follows the yellow brick road in "Wizard of Oz."

2. In an out-of-water skit, Joel Bretscher, Terry Grindlay, Tim Somers, and Rob Rogers try to convince their comma ding officer, Gary Goodman, the army is the wrong place for them in "The Draft Dodger."

3. With slapstick antics, nine junior high school students portray "Keystone Cops" in an act choreographed by Patty Maas.

4-Day Show Recreates Era

Presenting acts which ranged from "Bonnie and Clyde" to "Beatlemania." the Aquanauts themed this year's annual water production "Nostaligic Waves."

"The students really worked hard the show," said Mrs. June Schmett, Aquanaut sponsor. "All of the acts were choreographed and directed by cast members, and those people did a fantastic job."

In order to accommodate a larger number of spectators in the pool's limited viewing space, the cast gave evening performances on April 10, 11, and 12, and a Sunday matinee on April 13.

1. Dressed in glittered black, Terry Mitchell, Angela Shortridge, Luann Larcom, Jean Aszman, Cecily Warner, and Ingrid Bannec perform an act choreographed to the Andrews Sisters' "In The Mood."
2. Drying out after their performances, Nathan Bretscher, Larry Holmgren, and Seth Bretscher watch the rest of the show.
3. Lynn Grieger, Kris Hess, and Tina Higley use straw hats and canes to set off their ragtime act.
4. Representing the era of the 1920's, Cindy Brown, Chuck Neuschafer, Terry Grindlay, and Patty Maas execute their deckwork to "The Entertainer."

1. In a convocation held for VHS students, Roger Wagner directs his chorale as they sing a Negro spiritual.
2. Anxious to relax and do some sightseeing, Brad Staats and Bill Snell help unload the band buses in St. Augustine, Florida.
3. Displaying her school spirit, Danielle Zecevich cheers vehemently at the pep session before the Hobart-Viking football game.
4. Mickey Mouse dons a VHS marching band hat and plume and becomes an official member of the "Florida Band."

1. The hectic Florida trip prompts band member Kim Blastic to catch up on much-needed sleep on the bus.
2. Paula Brown protrays a hardwood Viking in the Junior Class skit, "Crackerjack," during the regional pep session.
3. Returning for their third consecutive engagement in Valparaiso, "Under New Management," sponsored by Youth For Christ, performs renditions of popular tunes.

Trip, Convos Revive Spirits

Traveling southward during spring vacation, the VHS "Florida Band," comprised of junior and senior band members, marched for a record crowd of 82,000 people in Orlando's Walt Disney World.

Between sun-soaking and music-practicing, band members found time to visit such places of interest as St. Augustine, Florida, Kennedy Space Center, and Nashville, Tennessee to see a performance of the "Grand Ole Opry."

Without having to leave the confines of VHS, students were able to relax and take time out from books and study. Convocations included musical programs from the Ball State Singers, the Roger Wagner Chorale, and "Under New Management," and pep sessions to help back Viking football and basketball teams in competition.

Juniors Recreate 'Atlantis'

The odor of paint and charred wood permeated the corridors of VHS during prom week, and inquisitive students wondered what lurked behind the sealed-off gym windows.

Inside prom committee members strived tirelessly to transform wire, plastic, spray paint, and cardboard into "Lost In Atlantis."

Juniors saw the results of their diligent efforts materialize when they unvieled "Atlantis" on May 16. Submerged in a Grecian setting of pillars and fountains, 185 couples danced to the music of "Cement City" as blue plastic waves billowed overhead.

The Pez Band from Chicago provided music for those attending post-prom at the Valparaiso University Union. A magician, a palmist, and a graphologist were also featured at the all-night event which was topped off with a 4:30 a.m. breakfast.

1. Post-prom activities get underway with dinner and dancing at the V.U. Union. Rob Bott, Debbie Bach, and Mike Rouse enjoy a wide selection of foods during the buffet meal.
2. Surrounded by the atmosphere of "Atlantis," Barb Long and Bob Malackowski share a quiet moment at prom.
3. Taking advantage of one of the various post-prom activities, Jeff Brown and Chris Carlson test their pool-playing skills.

1. As Cement City provides the music, Jeannie Ernst and Tom Yates execute the bump.
2. With prom night rapidly approaching, Luann Larcom begins construction on the fountain for the main floor.
3. A band break gives Don Strimbu a chance to take pictures of Janeen Mooers as she rests her feet.
4. To convey an undersea effect, Aaron Curtis fits a plastic canopy to suspended wire.

A member of the largest class to graduate from VHS, Carol Downing listens to Superintendent R. James Risk's speech to the 429 graduating seniors.

Skip Day Relieves Senioritis

Relieving some hassle from anxious seniors and irritated teachers, the school administration allowed graduates-to-be to designate a Senior Skip Day without penalty.

"Since Skip Day is a tradition," noted one senior, "I'm glad it's finally become legal. It took a lot of pressure off the faculty and it gave us another day to relax."

With all thoughts of books and school aside, the class of '75 graduated on June 4. Over 3000 people looked on as VHS Principal Garth Johnson presented diplomas to the 429 seniors.

In their first act as alumni, many of the new graduates congregated at the V. U. Union after commencement. Dancing and the music of Sahara highlighted the annual senior party.

1. Salutatorian Ruby Lee and Valedictorian Greg Fairchok take time after graduation practice to go over their commencement speeches.
2. As graduation ceremonies approach, seniors listen to Mr. Johnson's last-minute instructions at practice.
3. To insure a good fit for graduation, Mrs. Diane Kucinski measures Jack Sawyer for his cap and gown.
4. Upon hearing the long-awaited sound of "Pomp and Circumstance," Mark Airey, Don Albers, and Lori Albertson do some final hat-adjusting and courage-gathering before their entrance.

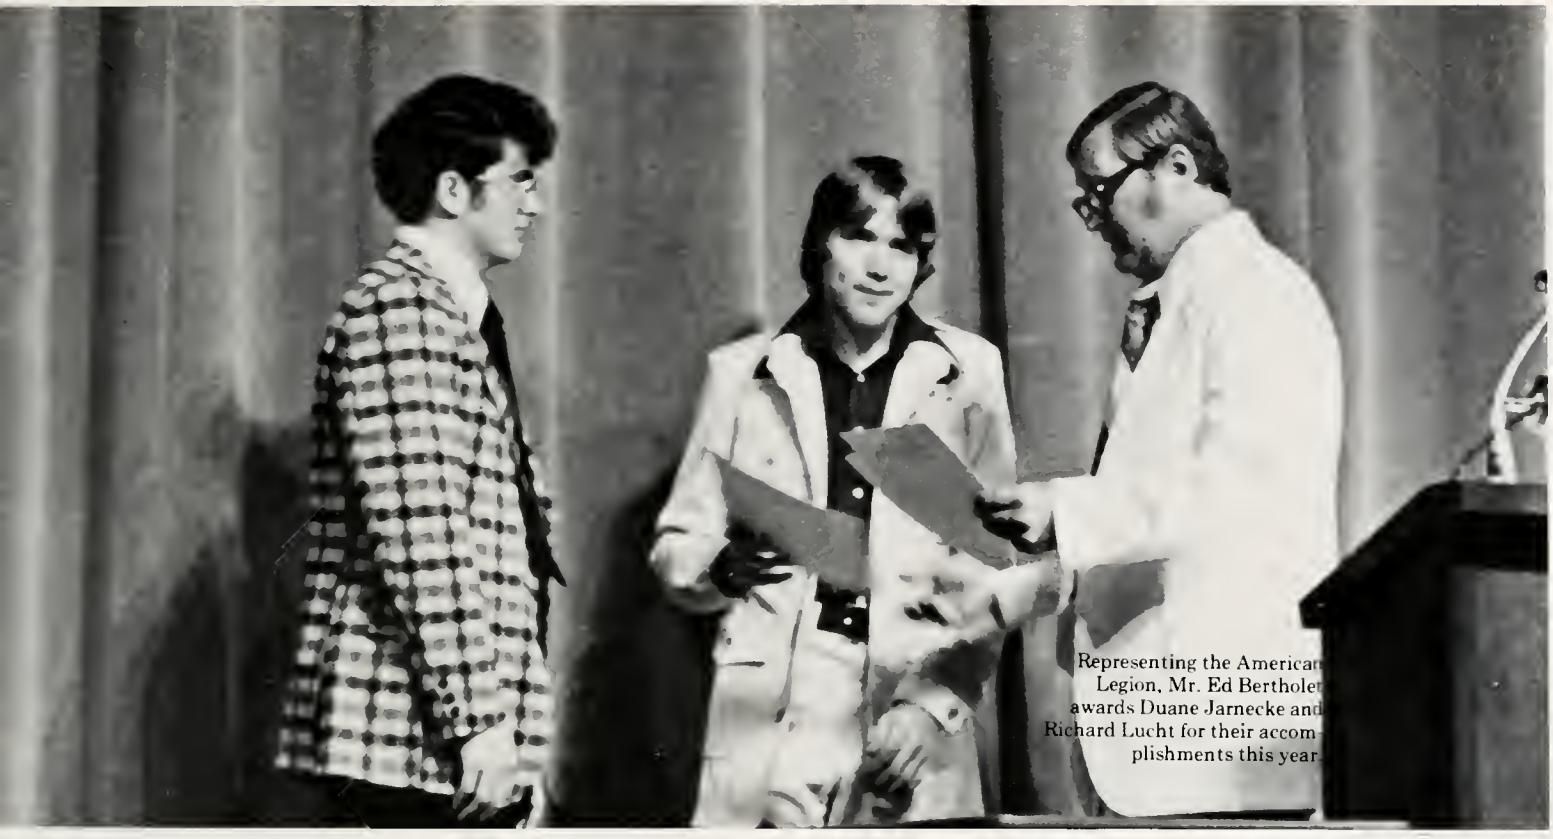
Honors, Awards, Signify End

As the 1974-75 school year drew to a close, representatives of the school and the community combined forces to honor outstanding students at Awards Night.

Approximately 350 students were recognized for accomplishments in almost every aspect of school life including scholarship, athletics, and attendance at the ceremonies held May 29 in the auditorium.

Individual school organizations, departments, and teams also honored their members with award banquets throughout the year. Sports teams held two banquets to recognize outstanding athletic performance in fall and spring sports. To commemorate what many described as a building year, the Publications Department hosted a banquet for staff members and their parents. Band officers for 1975-76 were announced on May 28 at the band's banquet in the cafeteria.

1. After a successful gridiron season, football team members enjoy the meal at the Fall Sports Banquet.
2. Keynote speaker Dr. Carl Galow speaks on freedom of the press in today's society at the annual Publications Awards Banquet.
3. Signifying Beta Sigma Phi's first venture into the awarding of college scholarships, sorority representative Mrs. Susan Mount presents a vocational scholarship to Marcee Nightingale.
4. In appreciation for his work with the band, A band president Rich Kilgour gives director Robert Miller a band staff jacket.



Representing the American Legion, Mr. Ed Bertholet awards Duane Jarnecke and Richard Lucht for their accomplishments this year.

of making each separate element
a working, integral part of the design.
The artist
so patient with his job
so skillful with his knowledge of each kind of fiber.
The fibers
restless, curious, impatient, or uncommitted and uncaring.
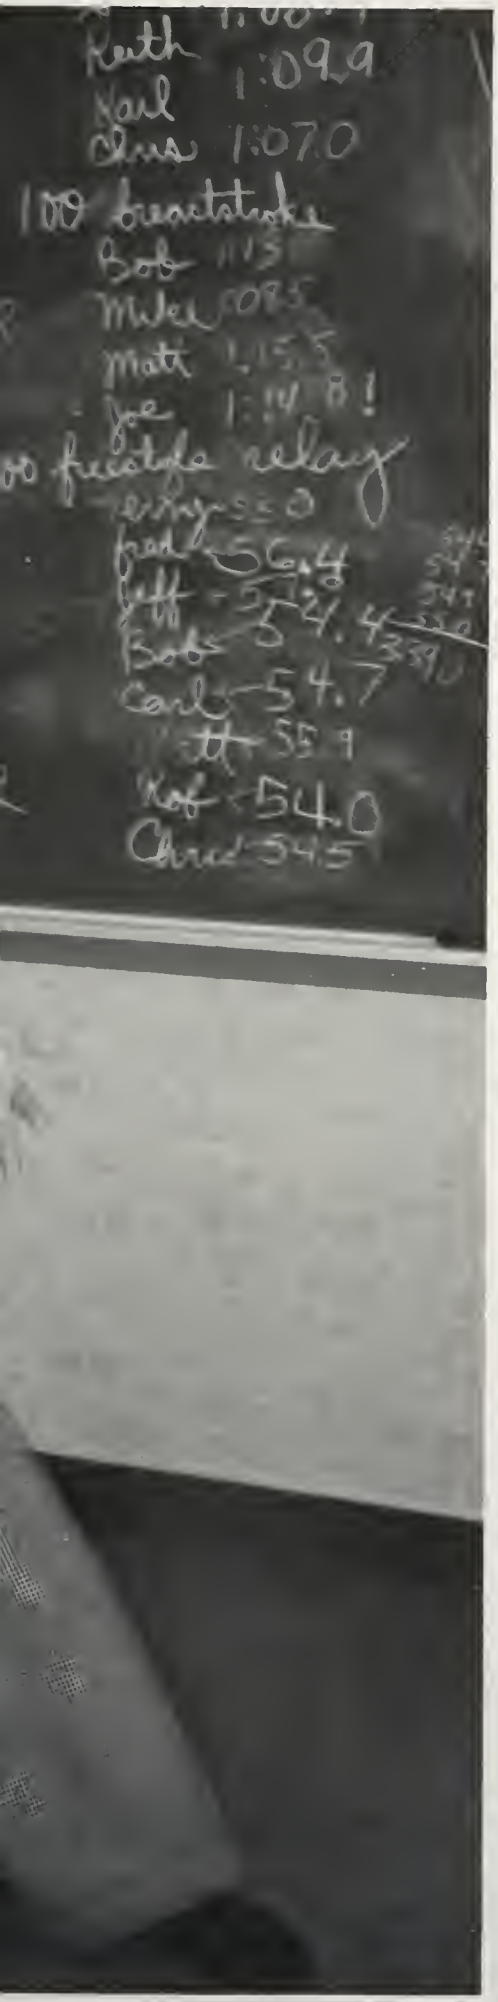
Somehow surviving under the same roof, and . . .
Weaving it into Valparaiso.

1. Lunch hour in the Learning Center is a great time to get started on homework, as Carla Klemz and many other VHS students have found.
2. To help relieve the monotony of studying, Mark Stasierowski and Martin Hackett study together.
3. Skill and a well-developed sense of balance aid Kathy Stone as she practices her beam routine for gym class.
4. Due to the multitude of problems chemistry students are confronted with, Mr. Larry Vinson willingly takes time to answer a question for JoAnne Leaming and Fred Koberna.
5. In his U.S. Foreign Relations class, Mr. Martin Miller listens intently to a student discussion on materialism in the United States.
6. Preparing his class to play a simulated war game, Mr. John Pinkerton explains the rules to an unsure team member.

1. As part of a project for Women in Literature, Bonnie Hensel explains Shirley Temple's role in drama and films.
2. Journalism student Sue Leffler analyzes school newspapers for varying layout styles.
3. Performing a parody of a peanut butter commercial in Humor and Satire, Mary McGivern plays the part of Peter Pansy.



Courses Update Phase System

Adding new courses and revising old ones, the VHS English Department is in a continual state of change. Latest additions to the mini-course program include Images of Women in Literature and News Bureau.

Previously out of place in the English Department, soap operas became a topic for study when Images of Women in Literature became part of the English curriculum. In addition to soap operas, students examined commercials to find stereotyped roles of women in a "man's world."

The VHS News Bureau enabled the community to become aware of school activities through articles published in the VIDETTE-MESSENGER. News Bureau students used class time to gather and edit information on social and academic activities of VHS students. These stories were then sent to the VIDETTE for publication.

When students were interviewed in November as part of an English Department survey, many felt that the English program was one of the most versatile parts of the VHS curriculum. Junior Sally Hallam said, "The large selection of courses will be helpful later on when I go to college because I can choose the ones I'll need."

1. After gathering details, News Bureau reporters Jack Sawyer and Bill Stankey prepare stories for publication in the VIDETTE-MESSENGER.
2. To understand the moral of a story, Carolyn Galloway interprets fables in Mythology class.

1. While studying pantomimes Dawn Ilgenfritz and Debbie Schirg perform a mirror pantamime before classmates.
2. Homemade ice cream is not only fun to eat, but easy to make, explains Elsie Terlicher as she goes through the simple procedure during speech class.
3. To fulfill a speech requirement, Kenda Nemeth gives an oral prose reading.
4. Voice and Diction students interpret the lyrics of songs to contrast their interpretations with those of the composers.

Actors Dabble In Drama

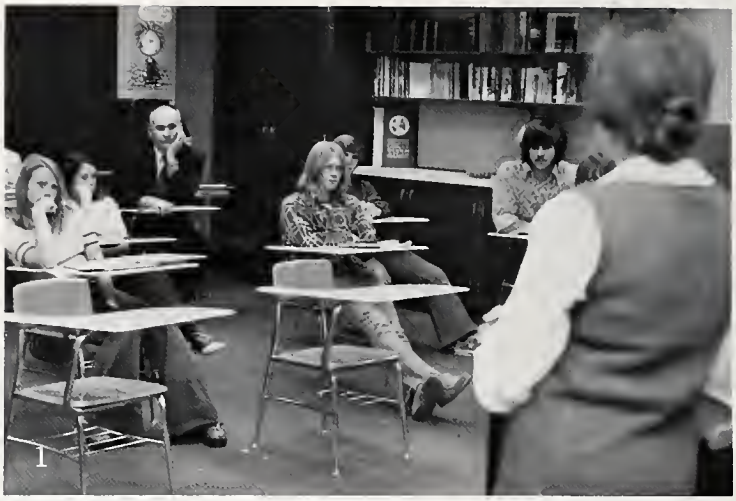
Theatre, behind and before the curtain, was the topic of study for 50 students enrolled in Drama and Acting class.

For the first nine-week grading period students studied the behind-stage aspects of drama. They spent one week preparing scenery for the fall production of three one-act plays. Students also studied lighting effects and directing techniques.

Beginning with pantomimes and improvisations, students gained on-stage experience in the second nine weeks of the course. After mastering these basic elements of drama, students advanced to staging one-acts and performing excerts from full-sized plays.

Students enrolled in Basic Speech learned the importance of a smooth delivery in speech making. They also concentrated their studies on the use of hand gestures, the significance of good introductions, and the need for well-planned conclusions. They practiced these techniques in speeches given during class.

1. Preparing a discussion to be presented in class Argumentation students Charlie Cohen and Kathie Huguenard outline what they will say.



1. Mr. Martin Miller assumes a student's position and students turn their attention to the front of the room for a lecture on Turkey during the new semester-elective course Russia and the Middle East.
2. Economics classes use THE NATIONAL OBSERVER as a source of information to keep a careful watch on the fluctuation of stocks.

A Course Divided Can Stand

Semester-long elective courses triggered a revitalized interest in the VHS History Department.

Previously a year-long elective, World History was broken-down into six specialized studies of varying areas of history. Some of the classes, aimed primarily at sophomores, delved into current events relevant to the region of study. Students enrolled in Russia and the Middle East obtained background information to gain insight into the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Juniors also joined in the History Department's new look with the revamping of the U.S. History program. The curriculum offered students a variety of subjects ranging from American Political Development to U.S. Foreign Relations.

One junior history student stated, "I really like picking my own semester courses. I didn't get bored going through a whole year of total history with the same teacher.

1. Participating in a history game called Panic, Barb Mieczenkowski is astonished to find her stocks have fallen.
2. Students play the roles of husbands and wives in American People as part of a study of women in society. Mike Potis orders Terri Busch to clean off a spot during their demonstration.
3. To maintain order, Fred Kendall keeps the gavel close at hand while leading a discussion in Mr. Sid Reggie's class.

Crayons, Games Find Niche

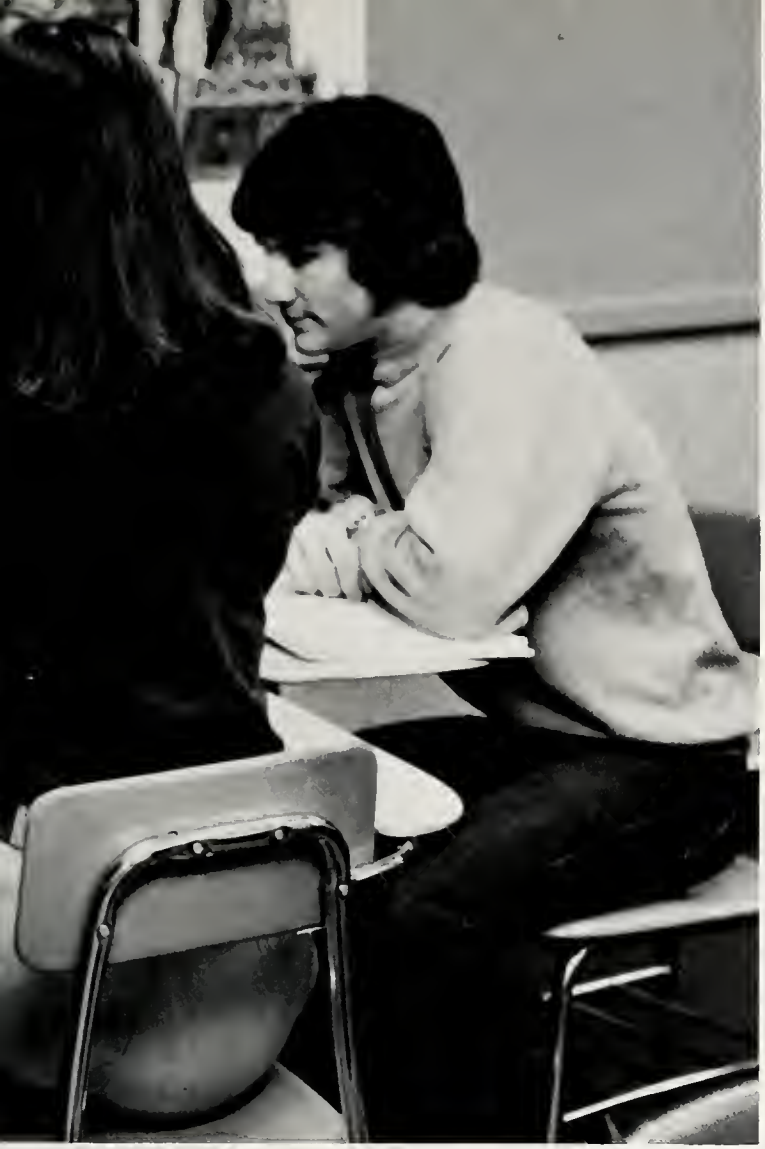
Examining the relationships and interactions of the individual and society, three courses open to juniors and seniors gave students an opportunity to acquaint themselves with material applicable to daily living.

In their studies of individual personality and behavioral patterns, psychology students took part in a temporary regression to first-grade tactics. Equipped with crayons and drawing paper, students drew pictures of what they imagined themselves to be as part of an analysis of self-concept. The movie "David and Lisa" also supplemented textbook material on schizophrenic and phobic disorders. Taking tests geared to two different socio-economic backgrounds, students were able to see radically different results in IQ scores.

Games portraying true-to-life situations gave sociology students an opportunity to see how members of society interact. One such game, "Sunshine," was a simulated community in which students experienced racial tensions and the problems of belonging to a minority group. "Star Power" illustrated society's inequalities and the difficulties confronted in advancing from one social group to another.

Students in social problems classes investigated the responsibility of society to resolve its conflicts. Primarily a discussion course, students pursued such topics as poverty and the changing roles of men and women in society. Students also visited a drug rehabilitation center in Gary and spoke with inmates at the state prison in Michigan City to augment class discussions.

1. During one of many class discussions, Social Problems students voice their opinions on world population.
2. The game "Mind Maze" tests the extrasensory powers of Jeff Clark and Sue Erceg as Kevin Hogan tabulates their progress through the maze.
3. Psychology students reflect on Mr. Jack Hildreth's explanation that dreams serve as an outlet for repressed emotions.



1. As Donna Coulter and Paul Loeffler take note of his time, Royal Church tests the sharpness of his reflexes by going through a maze.
2. Meeting in small groups on a weekly basis, psychology students discuss frustrations and how to handle them.

1. After learning the functions of the calculator, Business Machines student Cindy Marner works on addition problems.
2. Reading over her dictation notes, Carol Jones proofreads for errors.
3. Supplies Clerk Dawn Shoemaker records supplies used during an Intensive Lab work day.
4. Warm-up exercises at the beginning of typing class provide Mike Vas and Ron Hildreth with nimble fingers to complete five-minute time runs.

Lab Girls Enter Rat Race

Leaving their high school existences temporarily behind them, 37 senior girls entered the world of business for two hours daily.

These girls were students in VHS's Intensive Lab. The students observed the dress code of a typical secretary and had to go through the problems of getting jobs. The "secretaries" sent letters of application to their would-be employers and they had interviews with them. They also took employment tests to get placements in one of the 13 job station assignments.

To commemorate National Secretaries Week, all 37 girls visited local businesses during the week of April 20. The girls helped secretaries in the businesses with minor duties such as filing, typing letters, and answering telephones.

Lab student Dawn Ilgenfritz commented, "This course helped me to further develop my secretarial skills. It gave me an idea of what will be expected of me as a secretary in respect to speed and accuracy."

1. Their hands poised and ready to register figures on their adding machines, Accounting students Bill Reichard, Julie Edwards, and Bill Snell study corporate transactions.
2. With aid from a station booklet, key punch operator Lee Birmingham types names and addresses on cards.

Nature Lovers Continue Work

To put into practical use knowledge acquired in class and to obtain credit, Life Science students continued work on the Nature Study Area.

In the fall some students sprayed poison ivy and made paths from woodchips while others worked on leaf and wildflower collections. Work continued throughout the year as students made an informational booklet on the Nature Study Area.

Mr. Paul Miller, Life Science teacher, commented, "The Nature Area is an outdoor classroom for all ages. Garden clubs to Girl Scouts have all visited the area."

Physics students took part in annual contests again this year to earn extra credit. Designed to simplify the study of force, the bridge building contest was held in January. Later in the spring, the second mouse trap-powered vechicle contest was held to coincide with a study of energy.

1. Louie DeWitt and Jill Conklin observe Tom Burkett as he points out the leaf structure of an African Violet in the growing room.
2. While working on an experiment in Life Science, lab partners Karen Warwick and Mike Tanck profit from using the microscope.
3. To complete the requirements of a chemistry lab, Richard Lucht inspects a chemical reaction.

1. On his way to placing fourth in the bridge building contest, Brian Hartman successfully adds more weight to his bridge toward an overall total of 33 kilograms.
2. Applied Science students John Hopkins and Jim Panter consider Mr. Byron Rigg's explanation of the steam engine's energy converting capabilities.

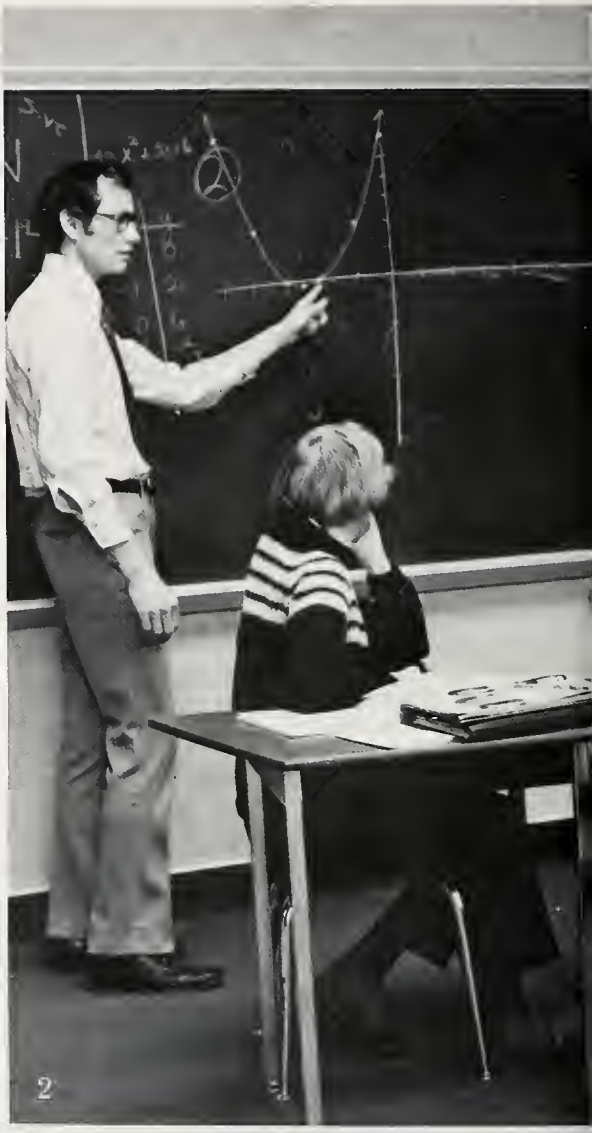
Wizards Win At Numbers

Though some students would object to dragging themselves out of bed to begin a test at 7:30 a.m., 58 dedicated math students willingly sacrificed sleeping hours to take part in the National Mathematics Contest.

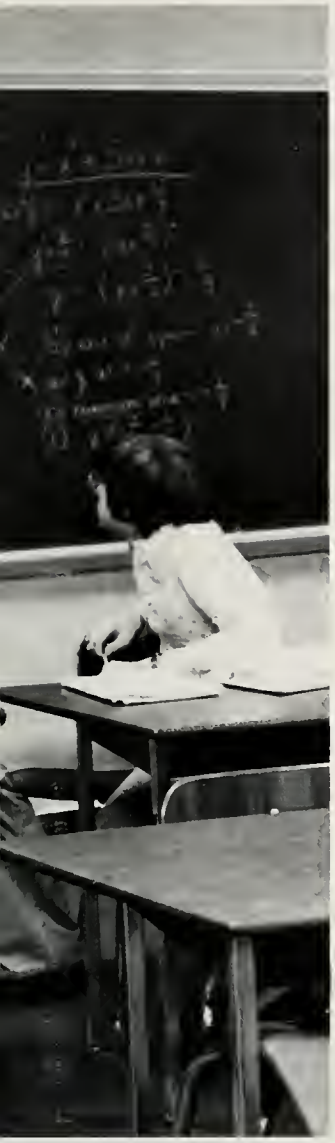
An hour and a half was allotted for students to complete the multiple choice test. It consisted of questions on elementary algebra, plane and coordinate geometry, intermediate algebra, and trigonometry.

Senior Kevin Hogan won the contest, which was sponsored by the VHS Mathematics Department. His score, along with those of Don Mohr, Joe Bolan, and Gary Rush, was entered in state and national competition.

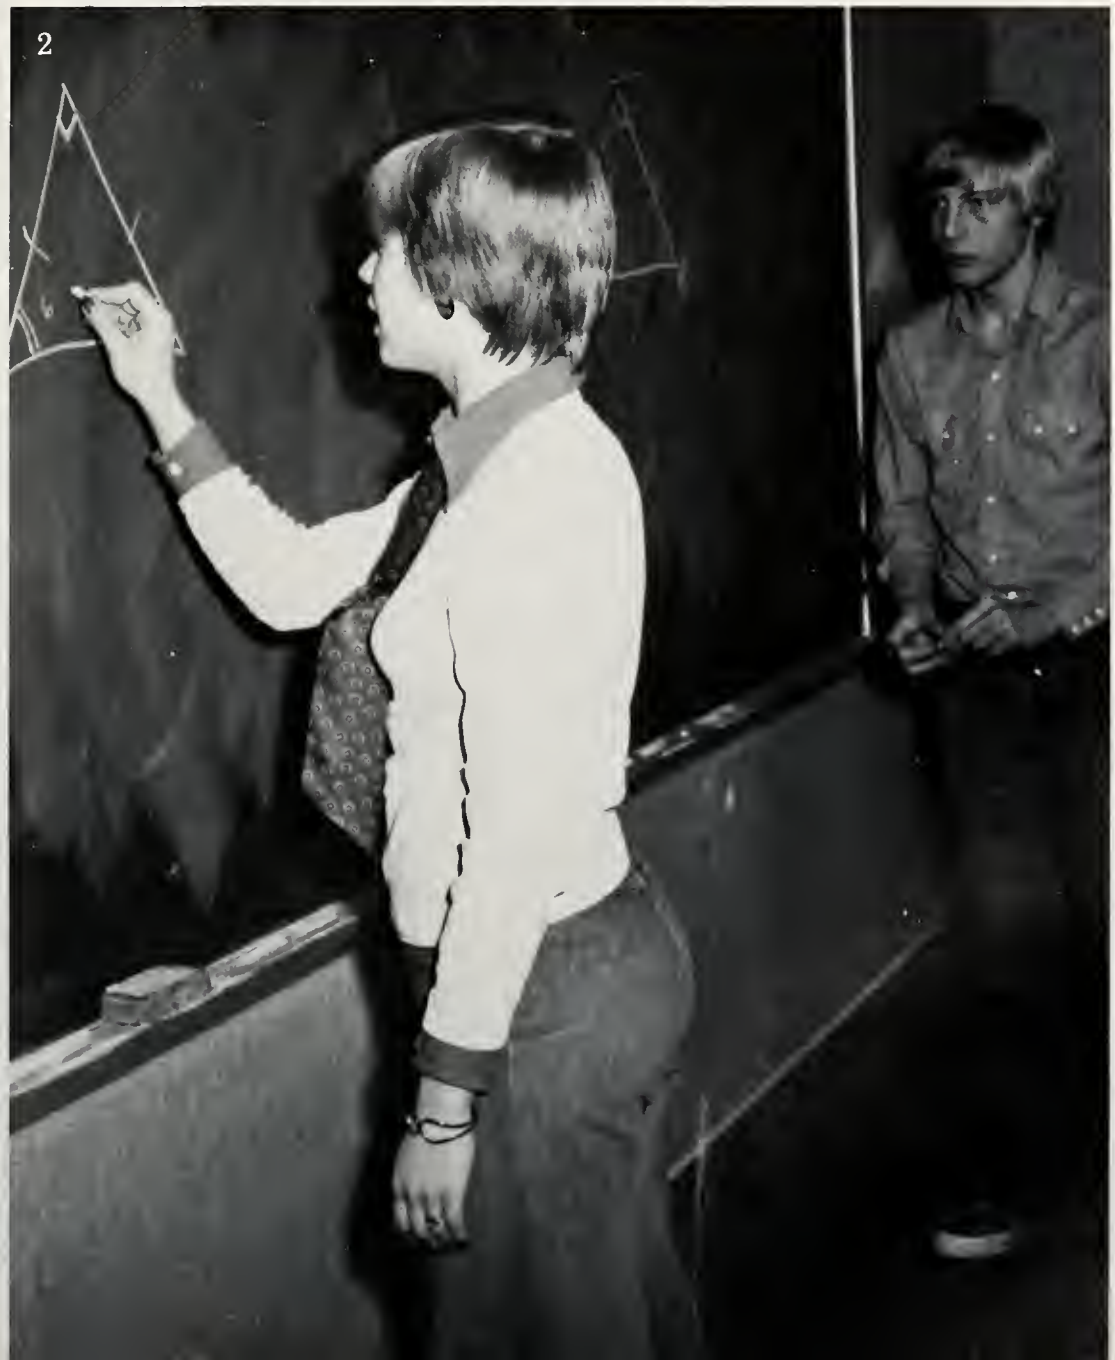
Later in the year the nine-member math team won first place honors in the Chesterton and Northern Indiana Invitational Mathematics Contests.



1. A participant in the Independent Study program, Suzanne Scherette consults the card catalog for information on juvenile delinquency.
2. An explanation of a parabolic graph consumes time in a review session in Mr. Don Scott's second-year algebra class.
3. Confronted with the puzzlements of unknown quanities, Sara Woodrow reflects on the solution to an algebraic function.



1. Math team members Gary Rush, Gayla Domke, and Mike Hogan proudly display first place trophy they won during the Chesterton Invitational Mathematics Contest.
2. Utilizing their knowledge of theorems and postulates, Diane Lebryk and Steve Lawson compete in problem-solving.



1. During its stop in ocean-side St. Augustine, the "Florida Band" brushes up on rusty marching techniques.
2. Aware that technical precision is necessary to obtain higher positions, B Band members Sandy Backstrom and Glyn Porter practice diligently.
3. The VHS Marching Band entertains Viking fans at the VHS-Portage game with Anthony Newley's "Nothing Can Stop Me Now."
4. A BAND MEMBERS — FRONT ROW: Rob Bixler, Karen Beach, Carol Bartholomew, Bill Snell. Bands Play Success Story

Continuing their winning tradition, the Symphonic and Concert Bands received superior ratings in NISBOVA competition.

The Symphonic A Band's performance at Hammond High School marked the first time in VHS history that a band received the highest ratings possible. The band obtained perfect scores on three rehearsed numbers and superior ratings on two sight-read numbers.

Performing in similar competition, the B Band received first-place honors for the fourth consecutive year.

Choirs Seek Spring

Unlike most students who found themselves penned within the confines of VHS, choir members escaped the endless tedium of early May with a four-day concert tour.

Students in the A Choir and Caroler members were excused from two days of classes for the tour, which was May 3-6. The two choral groups performed at Morristown High School in Indiana and Forest Park High School in Ohio enroute to and from Cincinnati.

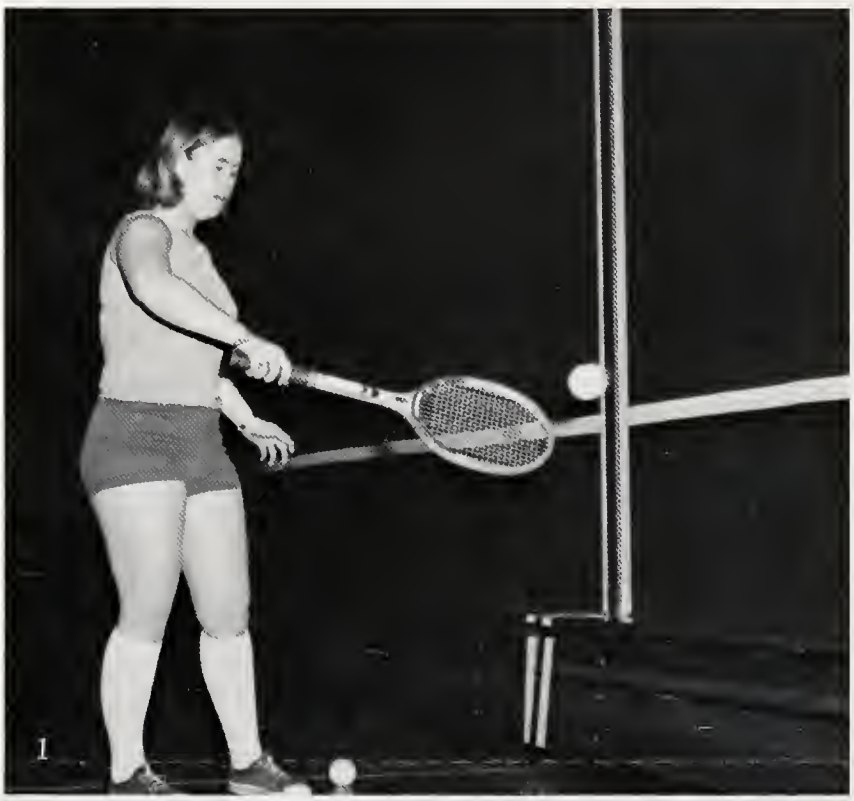
In order to finance the trip Carolers utilized their singing talents at various engagements and performed with the swing choirs at the Nostalgia Dinner The two groups also joined forces for a spring car wash which netted $600.

Swimmers Channel Free Time

Ambitious VHS athletes were given an opportunity to test their abilities in first-semester swimming classes this year. During the second nine weeks of the semester, intermediate swimmers splashed, gurgled, and sputtered their way through the grueling English Channel Swim. The swimmers set goals of five, ten, or twenty miles and worked to attain them during free time.

Thirteen students completed the five-mile swim, with no one surpassing this distance by going ten or twenty miles.

Each five-miler was awarded a patch and a certificate stating his or her accomplishment.



1. Forced to play tennis on the south balcony because of rainy weather, Tammy Sowers practices her backhand.
2. Enrolled in the experimental co-ed bowling class, Paula Claussen and Lori Thoreson keep score for teammates at Inman Bowling Lanes.
3. Volleyball students receive tips on serving techniques from Miss Nancy Walsh.

1. Kim Blastick swats the shuttlecock to her opponents as badmitton partner Steve Tracy readies himself for the return clout.
2. English Channel Swimmers — FIRST ROW: Alan Hauser, Lynne Howard. SECOND ROW: Jean Rosscup, Lorie Welsh, Judy King, Jennifer Walker. THIRD ROW: Paul Hanson, Dave Wegrzyn. FOURTH ROW: Greg Boehringer, Dave Clark. BACK ROW: Chris Kearney.
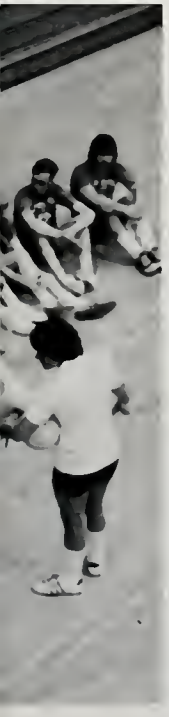
3. A tie-breaking homerun makes the score 11-10 as Mindy Ohler rounds the bases.



Art, Tortillas Augment Studies

To enrich their studies of foreign lands and to put to use their skills as bi-linguists, foreign language students ventured outside the language labs of VHS for several field trips.

A major topic of conversation in French classes was the Monet Exhibit at Chicago's Art Institute. Prior to visiting the exhibit in April and May, students studied Monet's technique and Impressionism in general.

One second-year French student commented, "Impressionist artists paint atmospheric conditions in no way I've seen before. The water lilies and hay stacks freaked me out."

Four Spanish classes went on a half-day excursion to Emelio's, a Spanish restaurant in Portage. As Spanish dancers entertained, students dined on various foods including tortillas, enchiladas, and tacos.

1. Depicting the role of Charlie Chan for a French skit, Dave Telschow searches for a murderer among students Cindy Brown, Debi Sturdevant, Marianne McCord, and Ingrid Bannec.
2. In a demonstration for second-year French students, Rhonda El-Naggar prepares Haluva, an Egyptian breakfast food.

1. With hopes of breaking a Christmas pinata, Greg Elliot takes a swing at the candy-filled paper mache´ object.
2. During free time given in class, Steve Meyer, Bill Sengpiel, Vicki Manogg, Sharon Zehner, and Vicki Baker read German magazines.
3. As part of a Mexican Independence Day celebration, Karen Rowland reports to her class on the origin of the holiday.

1. Receiving vocational training at the Vidette-Messenger, Tom Berndt counts and bundles the paper as it comes off the presses.
2. With the intention of selling a ring, Cindy Swain gives a prospective buyer price information at Jones Jewelry.
3. A student involved in the Distributive Education Program, Laure Johnson works part-time in the children's department at Lowenstines.

Jobs, Classloads Divide Time

With tentative decisions regarding career aspirations already made, many students enrolled in the Co-Operative Vocational Education program to develop skills needed for their chosen fields.

The program offered students four basic areas of study including health, foods, distributive education, and industrial arts. Following semester-long classes on these topics, students obtained first-hand experience in jobs related to their fields. They divided their time between attending regular classes and working 15 hours per week.

In May co-op students held a banquet honoring their employers. The businessmen received certificates of recognition for their participation in the program.

1. Under the hood of a Valparaiso Community school bus, Guy McDaniels checks the water level in the radiator.
2. As part of his job at Johnston's Sports, Jim Clouse inspects the gears of a bicycle.

Pre-Meds Probe Field

Interested in pursuing careers in medicine, 34 students worked in different branches of the field through the Dental Careers and Health Occupations programs.

In addition to working ten hours per week in dentists' offices, students involved in the dental program also fit a related course into their class schedules.

One dental student commented, "I found that I really enjoyed working in the dentist's office and plan to continue working there this summer. I hope to become a dental hygenist."

Health Occupations students studied in a two-hour block at school for the first semester and worked ten hours per week getting on-the-job training during the second semester. Students worked in areas such as nursing, physical therapy, and veterinary work.

1. Working in Porter Memorial Hospital's pediatrics ward, Cheryl Graham prepares the respiration unit for operation.
2. To more fully understand the procedure of taking blood pressure, Health Occupations students practice on a mock patient.
3. Collen Nowlin operates the eletrocephalograph to monitor changes of electric potential produced by the brain.

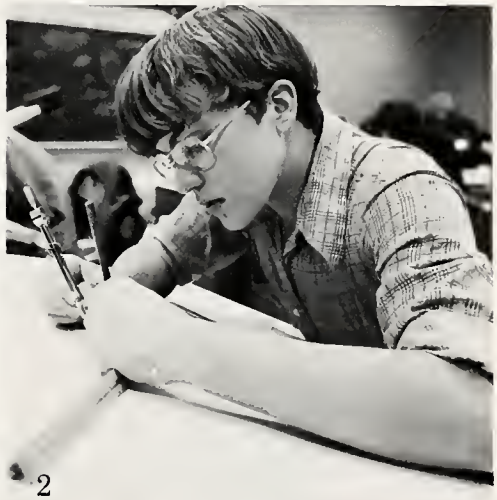
Shop Courses Ready Students For Careers

Preparing students for careers in industry was the main purpose behind the Vocational Drafting and Vocational Electronics courses. The architectural class, a two-year program, met two hours each day in order to provide students with background needed to advance to an apprenticeship or to pursue this field at the college level. In addition to the proper electrical code, students learned to contend with the problems of weather and heat loss. Electronics students attended class three hours daily for two years. During the first year of the program students learned to work with different types of electronic machinery. In the second year they applied these skills to repair and adjust t.v.'s, stereos, computers, and radar.

1. Bob Lembke uses a metal scale to draw horizontal lines as he puts finishing touches on his roof designs.
2. With assistance from Gil Clifford, Mark Allen gets a better perspective of his drawing.

1. While repairing a stereo, Paul Shortridge and Mike Pfledderer look for faults in the circuitry.
2. Geometric figures find their way to Introductory Drafting as Don Raschke practices skills he will use later on in Architectural Drawing.
3. Using the oscilloscope, Mr. Bruce Folbrecht and Dave Mueller check for proper voltage levels.



Metalists Employ Know-How

Having acquired a basic knolwedge of eight areas of the metalworking industry in the General Metals course, Advanced Metals students applied their knowledge in in-depth studies of the machinery in the Industrial Arts Department.

After studying the machinery in the lab, advanced students chose a field to specialize in. This exploration of a single area aided the students in choosing potential careers.

Other students entered the Vocational Machine Trade course after concluding their first-year studies. This course met daily for three hours, dividing its time between classroom study and labs. The classroom study was devoted to the technical aspects of the metal trade.

1. Working on one of his General Metals projects, Brian Pisarski drills portions of a tool tray.
2. Bob Roof turns down a ball peen hammer on the engine lathe to make final adjustments on his industrial arts project.

1. To improve his arc welding skills, Ross Marshall finishes a practice exercise.
2. Concentration and a firm hand help junior Jim Murphy to cut sheet metal with a hand sheer.
3. As Gary Herren watches him work, Paul Bostic uses the sheet metal notcher in making a tool box.

A-V Materials Revise Study

Movies and filmstrips supplemented the textbook to aid students in Health and Safety classes. Heart disease, cancer, alcoholism, and drugs were the topics of many discussions held in this one semester course. The function of the course changed somewhat this year with more emphasis being placed on mental health and physical fitness instead of the usual bandaging of wounds. Trips to the weight room were common when students were studying physical fitness. The purpose of these trips was to learn the locations and functions of muscles by using the machines. Anyone not familiar with the class would have been surprised at seeing students participating in thumb fights and arm-wrestling contests.

Many students have turned to Driver Education class in lieu of having their parents teach them to drive. "Some parents do not make good teachers for their own children and others simply don't care to take the time to drive around with their kids," said Driver Ed. instructor, Tom Stokes. Approximately 400 students enrolled in Driver Education during the summer session. Due to the restricted amount of available time, enrollment was limited to approximately 100 students during the school year.

Nostalgia Reaches Home Ec. Dept.

Coinciding with the revival of the "good-old" days in music, fashion, and fads, more students turned to the old-fashioned skills that were a part of grandmother's everyday life. When the Textile and Crafts course was started in 1970, there were only ten people enrolled. However, because of over-enrollment and a shortage of teachers in the department, students were turned away from the class this year. Clothing I students were both beginning and experienced sewers who, knowing the price of clothes in the store, turned to their sewing machines to make comparable garments for less than half the price.

The boys also became involved in the Home Economics Department. Students in Bachelor Living spent three weeks studying the nutritional value of meats. They prepared dishes ranging from hamburgers to lasagne.

Junior John Long commented, "I took the course because I wondered what it would be like. I thought it was going to be an easy course, but Mrs. Miinch really makes us work."

Photography students had a chance to express their feelings through pictures. After studying camera systems, exposures, and the dark room, students went on to take pictures and to put slide presentations together.

Photography student Gary Smith said, "Photography class gave me a chance to get out and shoot subjects that I otherwise would never get to."

Class Choices Impress Artists

"I like the big selection of courses that I can choose from in the Art Department. I just finished a lithograph and now I'm doing an etching. I can't wait until next semester," commented a sophomore Art I and II student. Art I, II, and III are recommended for those students interested in art and serve as pre-requisites for more advanced classes. Starting with the basic colors and working up to clay forms and copper, students progressed to ceramics, printing, drawing, painting, small sculpture, and jewelry.

Pauline Frank found the new class, Jewelry and Small Sculpture, one of her favorites. She said, "I think that the class is great! I can really get into it. I was able to make nearly all of my Christmas presents in this one course. I would have had to spend at least twenty dollars for the things that I made."

The second Annual Art Fair was held during the week of December 16. The works of many students in both classes were displayed in the main hall. Students demonstrated pottery, printing, and many other skills.

As larger enrollments indicated increased popularity, students found it more difficult to pick the art courses they wanted. They often found they had taken the majority of classes available or that their first choice was already filled to capacity.

1. Taking time out from their lunch hours, Leslie Higgins, Kristen Manatrey, and Kellie Murphy admire the art work displayed in the main hall during the art fair.
2. Mr. Kurt Anderson attracts Dale Heinrich's attention as he demonstrates the mystery of creating a ring from two simple pieces of copper.

Clubs Nurture Future Needs

To cultivate skills needed for future occupations, service club members sacrificed time toward gaining experience in their fields of interest.

Composed of approximately 120 members, Quest was the largest of the service organizations. Members were volunteers who gave up their study halls to work in various areas of the school, such as the bookstore, the Learning Center, the main office, and the chemistry lab.

Potential teachers joined the ranks of Future Educators in Action, a club for students with an inclination toward the teaching profession. Members took advantage of lectures and seminars held throughout the year to learn the motivations and qualities needed to become a teacher. Second semester, 10 seniors did exploratory teaching in area schools, with five students working in special education.

To prepare themselves for careers in business, Office Education Association (OEA) members worked to develop skills needed in various office situations. To put these skills to use, the girls took part in the OEA contest in February. With competition in skills ranging from business math to verbal communication, the contest sent the top three place winners in each category to the state contest in April. A progressive dinner held in December provided the girls with an opportunity to further develop social abilities for future use.

Ideas Fire-Up Service Clubs

Willingness to give of themselves characterized YARC and V-Teens members as these clubs focused their activities on serving others.

With a membership more than twice the size of last year's, V-Teens were able to get ideas off the drawing board and into action. A pooling of energies and resources brought about Desserts for Dads, donating food to needy families at Thanksgiving, and sponsoring the King of Hearts dance. In addition to these and many other annual projects, V-Teens sponsored Apple Day, a refreshing departure from the usual bake sale. Proceeds from this unique endeavor went toward a December trip to Chicago to see the ballet "Nutcracker Suite" and financing the King of Hearts dance.

In keeping with its purpose, the Youth Association for Retarded Children (YARC) planned various parties and social functions for the employees of Opportunity Enterprises. The Chesterton Moose Lodge was the site of a Christmas dinner dance where employees received jewelry commemorating the number of years they had worked at Opportunity Enterprises. In February YARC members hosted a box supper for the young adults following a performance of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

Casual Setup Kindles Ideas

Encouraging individuality and self-expression, the Photography and Folk Music Clubs thrived on an informal workshop format. Rehearsals and casual discussions replaced structured club meetings as students gathered to pursue common interests.

The Photography Club's main undertaking was initiating plans for an audio-visual contest. Because of a lack of entries, club members decided to schedule the contest for next year. This year the group concentrated on mastering darkroom techniques and improving picture-taking skills.

Using the auditorium and sound equipment, Folk Music members worked to develop a professional attitude. Due to widespread appeal, the group expanded to the junior highs in December. Projected goals for the club included performing in April Antics and entertaining in public.

1. Striving for improvement in her technique, Cheryl Hammons concentrates on becoming a more proficient guitarist.
2. To assure a better quality picture, Kris Mason adjusts his light meter before shooting.

Clubs Splash Through Year

Although in the area for contrasting reasons, members of the Girls' Timer Organization (GTO) and Aquanauts spent long after-school hours in or near the water.

Swim Coach Skip Bird described GTO members as "indispensable in running our meets." In addition to backing up the electrical timer, the girls worked as scorekeepers, typists, and runners. Providing moral support, GTO members decorated swimmers' homes shortly before the sectional meet.

As equality found its way into the synchronized swim club, the group took on male members and changed its name to Aquanauts. The club worked through first semester planning and rehearsing for the watershow in April. The four-day show featured 66 swimmers and the technical help of 12 crew members. To honor outstanding participants in the watershow, Aquanauts held a banquet April 30 at VHS.

Expansion Prompts Action

In their efforts to develop a pleasant rapport between students and faculty members, the Student Council and Student-Faculty Senate worked to open up lines of communications at VHS.

With 70 members the Student Council was the largest body of student government seen at VHS in recent years. This expanded membership allowed the council to be more active as they sponsored the Christmas Dance, a children's film festival, and the Ball State University Singers concert. Student Council also introduced VHS Spotlight, designed to recognize students and new teachers.

Composed of 11 members of the Student Council and 11 faculty representatives, the Student-Faculty Senate gave students an opportunity to share ideas and recommend solutions to problems. The Senate worked this year to obtain new furnishings for the Student Lounge and to get letter jackets for band members. At the Senate's suggestion, the streetlights in front of school were adjusted to relieve congestion before school. Student members also received the power to appoint new members to the Senate.

Combined Efforts Produce Results

To encourage students in the performing arts and to expand culture into the community, the Drama Club and Sound and Light Crew cooperated in the presentation of several major productions for public viewing.

Working diligently behind the scenes, Drama Club members not taking part in actual performances played key roles in all drama productions. An average of 25 students applied their talents to teverything from set and costume design to makeup and props. This, coupled with strong performances from Drama Club members, made it possible for 1975 to be an active year in drama at VHS.

In collaboration with the Drama Club, members of the Sound and Light Crew operated the lights at all Drama Club productions. In addition to this, the six-man crew did the lighting for Community Concerts, auditorium rentals, and school-oriented projects other than Drama Club presentations.

Monthly Trips Run Gamut Of Activities

In hosting foreign students and in making it possible for VHS students to visit abroad, the Foreign Exchange Club kept with its purpose of promoting international understanding.

Scheduling a major activity each month, the club tried to acquaint exchange student Lisbeth Pedersen with as many aspects of American life as possible. With club members as her guides, Lisbeth went into Chicago on several occassions for rock concerts or just to shop. In February the club took the 17-year old Danish exchange students to South Bend to see the Ice Capades.

In addition to these monthly activities, the club sponsored International Understanding Weekend April 25-27. Forty Exchange students visiting northwest Indiana attended a day of classes at VHS and were houseguests of Exchange Club members for an activity-filled weekend which included a sockhop, an afternoon at Bridge-Vu, and a picnic at Dunes State Park.

Soph Power Supplies Depth

Enthusiasm and a sense of humor enabled a predominantly sophomore VALENIAN staff to overcome inexperience and prepare the yearbook for publication.

Emphasizing individual styles, editors chose layout and copy-writing methods in correspondence with their capabilities. According to first-year adviser Gloria Arvay, this added variety to the book's design and made it possible for staff members to work with the style they felt most comfortable with.

To boost morale, staff members got together outside the classroom at fairly regular intervals. Santa Claus made an unscheduled appearance at a Christmas brunch to distribute gifts to everyone. The staff also awarded itself with a spaghetti dinner in March to celebrate the completion of a major deadline.

With the tedious job of recopying album layouts to accomplish, Lynne Howard retreats to the solitude of the VALENIAN room.

Contests Train Strategists

Having early-realized their career ambitions, students involved in the vocational and distributive education programs took part in contests and on-the-job training to develop backgrounds in their perspective fields.

To demonstrate their skills in the manipulation of industrial machinery, VICA members participated in local and regional contests. Organizing their own activities, the young tradesmen planned and competed in a basketball game against the VHS faculty. The club used proceeds from the March activity to pay for student fees at the VICA State Contest.

Working to finance a trip to their club's state convention, DECA members sponsored two after-game sock-hops. Eight students participated in the conference, which was held March 16-18 in French Lick, Indiana. Aspiring DECA businessmen also played host to their employers at a banquet May 7 at the Strongbow Turkey Inn.

Honoraries Regroup, Activate

Re-organization was the key word for honoraries as these three groups sought to give recognition to students involved in various aspects of school life.

The honorary for high school journalists, Quill and Scroll, found itself with a new sponsor and membership consisting primarily of students with one year's experience. The group sponsored the Publications Awards Banquet May 8 to honor members of News Bureau and VALENIAN staffs. Club members also had a bake sale and a spring car wash to raise money for journalism workshop scholarships.

Due to the graduation of all former members, Thespians experienced a complete turnover in membership. Thespians worked closely with Drama Club members on drama-oriented activities. Thinking of 1975 primarily as an organizational year, the group gathered ideas to be used next year.

Refreshing ideas powered the National Honor Society through an active year. The sale of carnations on Valentine's Day netted the group $170. This money went toward the purchase of pins and awards and a donation to the Junior Honor Society at Thomas Jefferson Junior High. Honor Society members also worked for the Cancer Society and ushered at commencement.

Males Deepen Spirit Voice

Faced with the challenge of providing support for all sports, 100 Pep Club members braved hoarse throats and paint-stained jeans to promote school spirit and encourage interest in all teams.

The revitalization of a boys' cheerleading squad was Pep Club's major activity for the year. Six senior boys formed the squad and Mr. Gerry Coffey acted as its sponsor. The boys worked alongside the two girls' squads to harness Viking spirit at football and basketball games.

The club was also responsible for organizing several sockhops and various spirit activities. Proceeds from two bake sales financed Homecoming festivities.

Sports Nuts Shape Up

Initiating changes in an old club and organizing a new one, Girls' Intramurals and the Bike Touring Club enjoyed the benefits of a school-wide surge in club activity.

Approximately 100 students participated in weight training, bowling, volleyball, and softball at various times during the year. The group invited boys to take part in the bowling segment, which was held the second and third nine weeks.

Cycle-mania hit VHS this year with the formation of the Bike Touring Club. With sunburned cheeks and aching muscles as proof of their efforts, club members had long-distance rides on Wednesday and Sunday afternoons when weather permitted. They pushed and pedaled their way to Crown Point, Boone Grove, and Three Oaks, Michigan, among other places. When winter weather put a stop to cycling activities, club members took part in clinics held to study bicycle maintenance.

Persistence Breeds Perfection

The cafeteria and the Learning Center became favorite haunts of members of the Chess and Debate Clubs as they endeavored to increase their skills in these time-consuming hobbies.

To improve their game for competitive purposes, Chess Club members met on an almost daily basis to play chess. The club competed in five major tournaments, two of which were held at VHS. In November the club hosted 24 schools in the Valpo Invitational. VHS was also the site of the regional tournament in March.

The addition of debate to the English curriculum sparked interest in competing. In what sponsor Mrs. Judith Lebryk termed a building year, the Debate team placed seventh out of 20 teams in an all-day debate at Highland High School. Relying on the strength of some outstanding debaters, the team finished reasonably well in its remaining meets.

Netmen Capture Record Season

Combining depth with a strong desire to win, the VHS tennis team compiled one of the best seasonal records thus far.

A motive for each player to give his utmost was a factor in the 18 wins and three losses. Coach Steve Doak said, "Quick thinking under competitive pressure played a major part in the season's outcome."

One of the season's highlights was an exciting sectional meet against South Bend Adams. Unfortunately, the hard-fought contest ended in a 3-2 defeat for the Viking netmen.

Receiving trophies for outstanding play throughout the year were seniors Bill Snell, Rick Kilgour, Shaun Evans, and juniors Tom Dixon, Colin Gromley, Tom Kruger, Steve Meyer, Micah Rubel, and Tim Shideler.

Slow Start Spurs Team Into Action

Redeeming themselves after a 31-14 defeat by Munster, the Varsity Football team regrouped and won their next nine games plus the Duneland Conference championship.

With a well-balanced offense that averaged 25 points per game, the Vikings battered their remaining opponents. Linemen Randy Kerns and Scott McDaniel cleared the way for a part of the team's 2,300 total rushing yards. Offensively, Dan Wellsand was the individual leader with 17 TD's and 1450 yards gained.

After the initial contest, Coach Tom Stokes modified the defense and things seemed to come together for the gridders. Viking defenders intercepted 19 passes for the year, with Dave Thiele and Mark Dofka each picking off four.

The season's thriller was a 17-16 victory over Hobart. With two seconds left, Bill Conover threw a game-tying touchdown pass to Dan Wellsand. John Poncher then made the extra point to win the game, thus avenging last year's upset.

JV's Command For Undefeated 8-0 Season

Winning Junior Varsity Football teams have become standard procedure at VHS in recent years. The 1974 squad was no exception, as the Sophomore Green Machine fought to an 8-0 record.

At least 35 out of the team's 55 members played in each game, regardless of the situation. This gave a wide variety of talent to a well-balanced team.

Offensively, the Vikes amassed 210 points for an average of 26 per game. Chuck Oliver completed 34 out of 74 passes, eight for touchdowns. Jack Wellsand had an outstanding year scoring 15 touchdowns to break the previous record of 14.

A hard-nosed defense yielded but 48 points to the opponent during the entire year. Steve Lethan received the Star Award for most intercepted passes, blocked punt and fumble recoveries during the season.

Injuries, Opponents Confront Harriers

Injuries and a tough schedule characterized Sam Rasmussen's first year as Cross Country coach. However, there were some outstanding individual highlights and the season ended with a seventh place showing at sectional.

Beginning in July, 14 boys ran double practices and averaged from 15 to 20 grueling miles a day. This was a major factor in building up everyone's speed and endurance.

The Portage Hokum Karem Invitational, in which 50 schools participated, was one of the highpoints in the year. Junior Matt Martin and sophomore Mike Nuppnau finished among the top ten runners, attaining the highest placings in the team's history.

Later in the season Martin and Nuppnau sustained injuries which kept them out of several important meets. This, plus running against some of the finest teams in the state, put a damper on higher hopes for the team.

Junior Tom Dougherty had a good season, and was named the team's most valuable runner at the Fall Sport's Banquet.

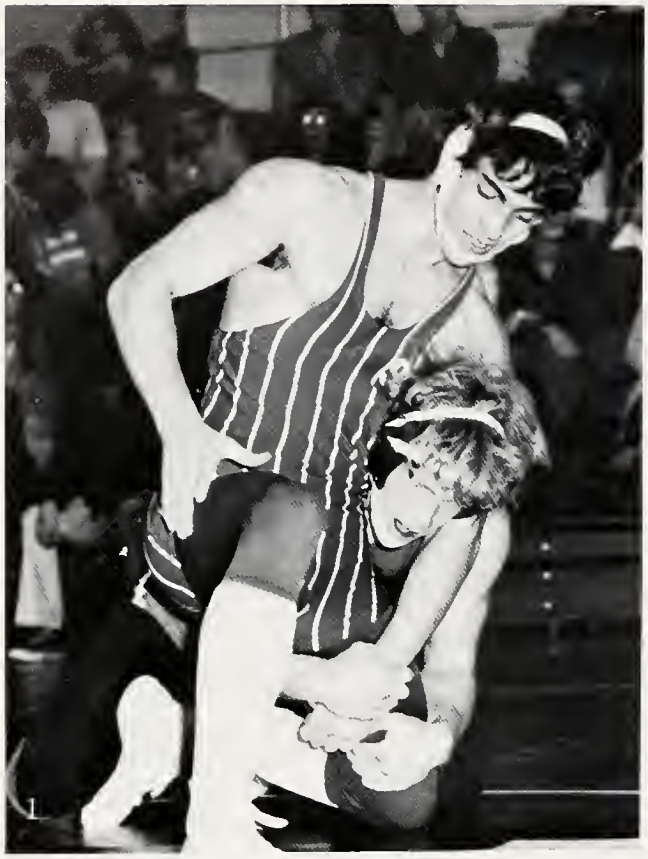
2. One asset was found in Dan Holbrook who transfered to VHS from California at mid-season.



Squad Improves Mat Techniques

As they acquainted themselves with a new coach and gained insight in their sport, the Viking matmen obtained a 10-5 record and a third place finish at sectional.

According to Coach Steve Morgan, a lack of experience hindered the team, but a personal satisfaction derived from victory compelled it to win. The grapplers defeated such fierce competition as Andrean, Lowell, and for the first time in eight years, Chesterton.

In his second year at VHS, team captain Dale West muscled his way to a 17-4 season. As second-place winners in the sectional, West and teammates Mark Canada, Scott Selby, and Bob Dorroll advanced to regional competition. There the four faced stiff opposition and were defeated.

1. Bringing pain to the face of his opponent, John Dorroll adeptly applies pressure in the Michigan City Elston meet.
2. In the final moments of his match, sophomore Bob Dorroll positions himself for the pin.
3. Another opponent falls victim to the aggressive tactics of 119-pound Dale West.

Oomph Added To Viking Defense Plans

Initiating a slower, more methodical game style and a UCLA-type pressing defense, new head coach Dale Ciciora's varsity squad finished with a 13-10 record.

More impressive was the round-baller's distinction of tying with Merrillville for the Duneland Conference championship. This marked only the second time VHS has finished first since the conference was formed.

This year's team had an advantage over its opponents in that all but two players were 6' or over, enabling the Vikes to rebound effectively. The result was 881 Viking rebounds compared to 764 by the opposition.

6'6 ½" powerhouse Dee Ciciora displayed outstanding ball control throughout the season and ended up as top scorer with 366 points plus top rebounder with 287. Don Rose finished second in both catagories with 245 points and 165 rebounds.

Seniors Ciciora, Rose, Tom Burkett, and Rich Johnson played their last hardwood battles for the Green Machine this year. Coach Ciciora commented that they hung in and displayed leadership even when the Vikes were behind in a game.

After winning their second sectional title in a row over Chesterton, the Vikes hoped to repeat as regional champs as well. In the first game, however, the Vikes suffered an early slump in shooting and lost to Michigan City Elston. Jerry Thomas led a third-quarter rally with 13 points, but in spite of the Viking effort Elston hung on and won.

Small JV Team Scraps Opponents

Aggressive, fast-breaking play characterized junior varsity basketball games this season. A keen shooting ability combined with speed made up for a lack of size as the team ended up 15-5 for the year.

Clutch ball playing came into use on repeated occasions when the Vikes were behind. New head coach Fred Mitchell said, "In some games we were behind by as many as 10 points late in the game, but we kept up the pressure and pulled out victories."

Offensive weapon Mike Nuppnau scored 331 points for an average of 16.5 points per game. The leading rebounder was Chuck Oliver, pulling down an even 100.

Other outstanding players included Fred Koberna on defense, Brian Doane with 96 rebounds, and Ron Nelson with 24 assists.

Young Tankers Train, Mature

In terms of development, 1975 was a highly productive season for Viking swimmers.

Coach Skip Bird said, "We worked harder and utilized a wider variety of training techniques than ever before." A 'cyclical' program was initiated with practices held in cycles of varying degrees of difficulty.

Emphasizing gradual improvement, Coach Bird thought of the regular season meets as training for the sectional. This theology proved beneficial as the team placed fourth in the meet and many swimmers greatly cut their times.

Seniors Joel Bretscher and Tim Somers led the Viking squad throughout the season. At the state meet, Bretscher set school records of :54.76 and 5:06.5 in the 100 butterfly and the 500 freestyle, placing fourth and twelfth, respectively. Somers placed tenth in the 200 individual medley with a record-setting time of 2:06.18. The co-captains scored enough points to earn a fifteenth place ranking for the tankers.

Improvement: By-Product Of JV Drive

Incentive provided that extra push needed for this year's Junior Varsity Baseball squad. The team finished with a 9-15 record, the best in recent years.

Coach Charles Geiss initiated an offensive point system which contributed to greater output by the players. Points were either earned or taken away depending on each individual's performance in a game. At the season's end, Mark Stasierowski led the team with 302 offensive points.

Power hitting and a strong pitching attack were key components in the improved records. Butch Peterson, with a .317 batting average, led the team in that category. The combined efforts of Dan Lund, Mark Davidson, Tom Dobbins, and Mike McCray gave the team a well-balanced, dependable pitching staff.

1. During a pre-game practice catcher Greg Kenworthy concentrates on the coming pitch.

New Diamond Brings Luck To Varsity Squad

A 10-0 victory over Calumet opened the Varsity Baseball team's home season, christening the brand new diamond behind VHS.

Use of the long-awaited facility gave the Vikes a home-field advantage for the first time since moving from the old building. This added dimension to the Viking effort helped to yield a winning 14-12 record.

Pitching was outstanding this year with Mark Thune, John Jipping, and Kurt Jamison taking the brunt of their opponents' attacks. Equally important was performance at the plate where Bob Johnson's .465 batting average made him top Viking slugger and Bob Mertz's .406 gave him a second place finish.

In the last week of May, the Vikings copped their second sectional title in two years.

1. An opposing pitcher's wildly thrown ball scores Mark Dofka from third, adding another run in the 5-1 victory over Plymouth.

Team's Drive Compels Victory

A key in the building of a good golfer is concentration, hard work, and practice. This year's Golf Team was no exception to the rule as the boys spent much of their spare time chipping and putting around Forest Park and the Valparaiso Country Club.

This continual practice benefited the team as the season went on and each individual played stronger golf. Coach Bob Cain said, "This year we had good kids capable of good golf, and when they put these abilities to use, they won."

Cindermen Pound Pavement

Record-breaking is the word most commonly used to describe the 1975 Track team's season.

Records fell this year in four of the five field events as VHS had one of the state's strongest teams in this area. Tom Burkett, Dale Lamberson, Kevin Anderson, and Dave Thiele also obtained a record-setting time in the mile relay.

The team's only major downfall was in long-distance races, where no one person was particularly strong. The Vikes were confronted with another problem when pole vaulter Tim Somers broke his ankle in the Hammond Relays.

The team had five members qualify for the state meet. They were Brad Wood and Scott McDaniels in the discus, Jeff Thomas in the long jump, Randy Kerns in the shot put, and Bill Conover in the hurdles. Conover, who accumulated 182 points during the season, was chosen Most Valuable Team Members at its conclusion.

Boys Promote Student Fervor

Reviving an activity not seen at VHS in seven years, six senior boys organized a cheerleading squad to direct male spirit at basketball games.

The squad's formation necessitated a change in Pep Club rules to allow boys to join. Sporting uniforms provided for them by the school, the boys stood out in white overalls and green shirts.

In commenting on their unique endeavor, squad members Jack Sawyer and Mike Tanck said, "Before we came, cheerleading was a popularity contest. This year we tried to direct it toward building school spirit."

Two squads of girl cheerleaders worked alongside the boys as they led Viking supporters in yells and chants throughout the season. Junior Beth Wilson joined the squad after the football season when Lynn Thiele moved to Texas. She and the 17 other Viking cheerleaders composed the only squad which included male members of all the schools VHS competed against.

1. Sophomores join the spirit scene as JV cheerleaders Judy Head, Shari Sweet, Kristin Manatrey, Michelle McGaffic, and Jan Pearson perform a cheer at the Lafayette Jeff game.
2. Generating enthusiasm as they form a human pyramid are cheerleaders Greg Galasso, Mike Tanck, Jack Sawyer, Bill Stankey, and Julie Brown.
3. As the team takes a timeout, Barb Mieczenkowski and Lisa Fischer consult with fellow cheerleaders on what cheer to do next.
4. A third-quarter rally brings Viking fans to their feet at the South Bend regionals.

1. Vikette Marty Pelton goes through one of the many well-rehearsed routines during halftime at a basketball game.

2. With the team trailing by 10 points in the regional game against Michigan City Elston, varsity cheerleaders try to bolster spirit.

Girls' Sports Change Pace

In its first season as an organized sport, the Girls' Golf team gained experience and developed a cooperative spirit en route to compiling a 7-5 record. Playing three matches a week at times, the girls drove their way to place fourth out of ten teams in the sectional meet.

New coaches and new uniforms gave the Girls' Volleyball teams a fresh look. Doug McGriff coached the A team to an 8-10 record while Coach June Schmett's B team turned out 16 wins and three losses. Carol Klemz, Nancy Clarke and Sue Hauber added force to the Viqueen attack as the A team won the sectional at Morgan. One week later, however, Hammond Gavit's team defeated the girls in regional competition.

New Coaches Take Command

Under the direction of Coaches Jane Foley and Linda White, the Girls' Swim team accumulated a long list of accomplishments this season.

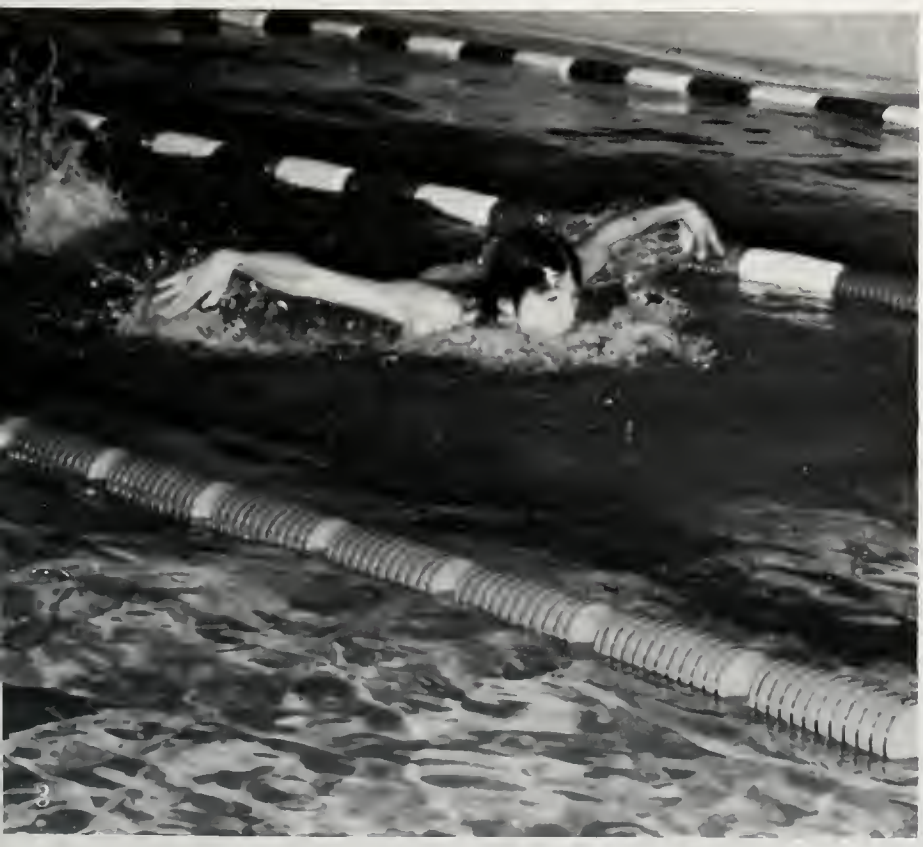
The girls went 13-0 during the regular season, won the Duneland Conference and sectional titles, and finished sixth in the state.

Depth was a factor in the season. Coach Foley said, "We had extremely strong back-up swimmers who consistently received thirds at meets, plus a group of exceptional athletes who got firsts."

In the state meet, Carol Woycik placed second in the 200-yard freestyle and Sue Poncher swam to a third-place finish in the 50-yard freestyle. The 400-yard freestyle relay comprised of Woycik, Poncher, Karen Warwick, and Carla Somers placed third in state competition.

The Girls' Gymnastic team completed the year with a 5-5 record in both the beginner and intermediate classes.

Coach Mona Rhoda commented, "This season was exceptional as far as cooperation went, considering the six long months that the girls concentrated on gymnastics."



1. A beginner in gymnastic competition, Sheryl Gabram practices her technique on the uneven parallel bars before the Griffith meet.

Attitude Sparks Team Records

While the majority of VHS students studied diligently for semester exams, the Girls' Basketball teams sacrificed sleep and study hours to play River Forest and Hammond Gavit on consecutive nights.

Despite the zeal the team displayed throughout the year, varsity Viqueens suffered a 5-8 season. The junior varsity, however, broke down their opponents 12 times while losing twice.

Since 26 sophomore girls played on the JV team, coaches initiated a policy of rotating seven people to play in each game. This gave more girls an opportunity to participate.

Even though the varsity team worked hard and played well as a team, they lacked a leader who could take control of the game. Assistant Coach Judy Lebryk commented, "The girls enjoyed what they were doing and had a chance to meet girls that they wouldn't have met otherwise."

Female Jocks Smash Records

As Coach Nancy Walsh put it, this year's Girls' Track team represented "many hours of hard work, concentration, and total effort."The team's outstanding record was evidence of this effort and a reward to those who participated.

The team's list of accomplishments included winning their first Duneland Conference Championship, regaining the sectional title, and breaking four school records.

Under the direction of coach Steve Doak, the Girls' Tennis team obtained an unblemished 11-0 record.

The girls easily overpowered most of their tough opponents. Coach Doak commented, "We had an amazing collection of girls this year, and with over 40 girls in the program, we had a lot of talent to choose from."

The finished product

The finished product
the work completed —
for awhile anyway.
Each thread in its place,
radically different from the material
it once was,
changed by the artist's skilled hands to something more refined, more prepared for whatever and whenever — if ever.
The design has been modified,
bonds have been made and broken,
a few got lost along the way, but somehow each one shared in . . .
Weaving it into Valparaiso.

Attitude Promotes Optimism

In its efforts to serve both students and faculty alike, the administration worked to develop an amiable environment and an above-average rapport between students and teachers.

An atmosphere of optimism has had a twofold effect: help from the administration has enabled teachers to do a better job and has allowed students to assume more responsibility.

Constantly working to maintain an up-to-date curriculum. administrators co-operated with educators to upgrade courses.

Besides having an active hand in curricular events, the administration extended itself through a number of publications.

A handbook, distributed to the student body at the opening of the school year, supplied general guidelines to follow and a calendar of important dates to look forward to. Furthermore, a curriculum booklet outlining course offerings was compiled and printed to aid students in planning their schedules.

The early part of the school year saw administrators making final arrangements for the NCA evaluation committee. Throughout the week of October 29, the committee observed teachers and talked with students.

Administrators were anxious to receive a favorable evaluation because of the impact it would have on the schoolboard's budget and policy-making decisions. Although the report noted areas in which improvements were needed, the overall appraisal was an excellent rating.

1. Responsible for compiling student attendance records and handling disciplinary problems is Assistant Principal James McMichael.
2. Director of Food Service for Valparaiso Community Schools, Mr. George Nash also teaches Vocational Food Services two hours daily.
3. In addition to his duties as athletic director, Mr. C. J. Doane, assistant principal, arrives early each morning to contact substitute teachers.

Curriculum Changes Warrant Media Staff's Efforts

Upon entering the Learning Center, the first impression one formulated was merely a superficial overview. Comfortable furniture, sound-absorbing carpeting, piped-in music, and displays of art work provided a relaxing atmosphere for students as well as teachers and for leisure reading as well as studying.

Examining the bi-level facility more intensely, students discovered not only books, but periodicals, filmstrips, and video-taping equipment which proved to be valuable research tools.

To keep teachers and students alike supplied with audio-visual aids and supplementary material, school media professionals Mr. Dean Gerber and Miss Beth Wahlert found it necessary to pace themselves one step ahead of curriculum trends. An awareness of the changing curriculum helped the professionals prepare for new additions such as the interdepartmental American Studies course. The Learning Center staff extended its resourcefulness from curricular to extra-curricular participation, lending aid whenever possible.

National Honor Society and VALENIAN received a helping hand in the preparation of slide-tape presentations. Media crew members used equipment to video-tape basketball games.

Moreover, the Educational Media Division of Indiana and the NCA evaluation committee both found Learning Center equipment instrumental as they met to discuss educational methods.

Staffs Perform Vital Functions

Often overlooked, but the first to be missed, secretaries played a vital role in the life of Valparaiso High School. Assisting administration, teachers, and students, secretaries were responsible for many of the important details which kept the school running smoothly.

The Guidance Department also provided valuable services to the student body. Among these services were the Guidance Library and the job employment service.

To help students in their college search, the Guidance Department asked representatives from various colleges to come and talk with students. A total of fifty representatives visited the school throughout the year, meeting in seminars with students to discuss the pros and cons of the various institutions.

1. Guidance Director Mr. Don Dick supervises counselors in their endeavors to aid students.
2. Mr. Alfred L. Henkel, full-time guidance counselor, looks forward to active retirement.
3. Guidance Counselor Mr. Jack B. Hildreth counsels students and also teaches Psychology two hours daily.
4. An active participant in after-school activities, Guidance Counselor Mr. Elaine Clark coaches the Girls' Golf team.

Teachers Reveal Themselves Through Activities, Participation

Getting acquainted with the sixty-four member staff, students learned that teachers are real people. The apparent one-sided cardboard figures seen in class became three-dimensional living beings after school hours.

Exploring their minds, in pursuit of their own interests, teachers took part in extra-curricular activities, acting as club sponsors. As athletic mentors, teachers found relaxation while they taught students skills in their favorite sports.

Off campus, VHS faculty members enjoyed playing the guitar, commercial flying, cultivating plants, and weaving with a floor loom.

Combined Efforts Of Staff Result In Efficiency

Anticipation-Created Limbo Traps Fired-Up Class

Weary of school rules and other trivia, seniors made post-graduation plans for work, marriage or further education. Impatiently awaiting graduation, but not quite ready to accept the finality of leaving high school, many seniors found themselves in a state of limbo.

Although recent years have characterized graduating classes as apathetic, six senior boys ignited a spark of hope for the 1975 graduates. Organizing into a cheerleading squad, the boys assured outsiders that the class of 1975 was spirited and willing to get involved.

Elected to lead a class of 419 members, senior class officers; main task was to plan periodic class reunions following graduation.

Seniors celebrated the end of one part of their lives and the beginning of another at the parent-sponsored Senior Party held after Commencement.

Analagous Aspirations Propel Juniors To Action

The class of 1976 began their second year at VHS a little more sophisticated and knowledgeable than last year.

United academically, juniors fulfilled the two credits of required American history. This year's juniors experienced a refreshing change as history classes moved to the semester-long phase-elective format.

Beginning with organization and supplementing this with their own optimism, Junior Class officers and 30 prom committee members led an enthusiastic class through the successful creation of "Lost in Atlantis."

Juniors initiated several activities to raise funds for the one-night affair. In a November project entitled "Donate-A-Day," Junior Class members sold themselves to people in the community. The slave day proved to be an accomplishment, netting $750.

Additional funds were compiled in a Junior Class sponsored car wash, held in mid-April. Although bad weather threatened, the car wash brought in $175.

Collection of class dues and the raffling of a Norfolk Island Pine tree were other ways in which the committee obtained financial support for prom.

After weeks of hard work and making ends meet, juniors saw their efforts paid off in the reality of "Atlantis."

A Valparaiso shopper takes advantage of Junior Class slave day to complete another sale for Cherie O'Connor and Rick Rumford.

Sophomores Acclimate Themselves To Environment

In their first year as high school students, sophomores spent a considerable amount of time orienting themselves to their new surroundings.

By the second grading period they learned that finding classrooms and making adjustments was not as bad as it was often purported to be. This was especially true when upperclassmen offered encouragement to sophomores as they navigated their way through alien corridors.

Sophomore athletes proved themselves both on the gridiron and hardwood, producing a perfect football record and dropping only one basketball contest.

Three girls and one boy effected the duties of class officers, organizing class ring sales.

Overseeing sophomore class functions are Fred Koberna, pres.; Kristin Manatrey, v. pres.; Shelley McCormick, sec.; Leslie Higgins, treas.

4 Guideposts for Happier Living From First Federal

1 BE CONSIDERATE
Develop a sincere interest in people, their lives and their problems. Be understanding, and never build personal success at the expense of others.

2 HELP THOSE IN NEED
You will find few experiences so rewarding in life as the times you give a helping hand to folks in need.

3 CONTINUE TO LEARN
Stay mentally active, intellectually curious, receptive to new ideas. Education is a wondrous process continuing throughout life.

4 CULTIVATE THRIFT
Save regularly from the start. Thrift gives you an important extra margin for progress . . . for security . . . for success.

This book was printed on 80-pound gloss paper at Josten's/American Yearbook Company plant in Clarksville, Tennessee. The cover is four-color Truelife-Reflective and was designed by Terry Van Santen and Marilee Lindemann.

Headlines for theme sections are 24-point Cooper Black Condensed. In the Album and Advertising sections headlines are 24-point News Gothic Bold and in the remaining sections they are 24-point Palatino Bold. Body and caption copy are in 10- and 8-point Century Schoolbook except in the Album and Advertising sections where they are 10- and 8-point News Gothic with Bold.

1. A resident of the VALENIAN room and a source of inspiration since October, Marvella is the staff's dormant Maidenhair Fern.
2. As the staff's third major deadline approaches, American Yearbook representative Mrs. Pat Lindemann and adviser Miss Gloria Arvay check layouts before shipping them.
3. With pictures and a pica stick close at hand, Organizations Editor Kathy Newland designs preliminary layouts for her section.
4. Taking a break while Miss Arvay takes a phone call in the Faculty Library, the VALENIAN staff relaxes before settling down to work.
5. Because her job as Album co-editor necessitates knowing many details, Mary Rose Dougherty interviews sophomore class officers.
6. Both in their first year on the VALENIAN staff, Stacie Fisch and Gary Smith consider what angle for the picture they are taking would be best.

Rebate, stalemate

Outside influences geographically far-removed yet exerting a constant force.
1975 scandal, crisis, inflation
as the nation looks toward its bicentennial.
Politically
new faces, policies struggle to relieve economic difficulties.
Unemployment
soars, steel industry lays off thousands,
Chrysler begins rebate mania.
Conflict
friction in the Middle East comes to a standstill, Viet Nam . . . succumbs.
Everyone asks why and those in authority continue to seek the Answer as an anxious world waits in bewilderment.

1. Following his inauguration as 41st Vice-President of the United States, Nelson A. Rockefeller receives a congratulatory handshake from President Gerald Ford.
2. Amidst the din of a city under seige, a soldier of the Khmer Rouge drives Pnom Penh shopowners from their stores.
3. In between his attempts to restore peace to the Middle East, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger appears before a Senate Subcommittee on Capitol Hill.
4. Skirted by followers of Operation PUSH, Rev. Jesse Jackson leads a minority protest down Chicago's State Street.

March - May

Reflection
warmer weather and the realization that time is passing cause many to stop and think.
The older ones
look back over lost moments and idealistically dream of what lies ahead.
The younger ones
take it a moment at a time but perhaps not as carefree as they seem.
Many search for windows and finding them gaze out at a baffling world.
Some seek answers to abstract riddles,
others merely criticize
But each wonders in his own way what his contribution will be.

1. A hike at Dunes State Park gives Exchange Club members an opportunity to get acquainted with visiting foreign students.
2. An early arrival at the meeting point on Vale Park Road, a lone car awaits the formation of a caravan on Senior Skip Day.
3. Though spring is a little late in making its appearance, this columbine blooms in the VHS Nature Study Area.
4. No longer battling the pre-graduation jitters, Tarik El-Naggar and fellow seniors relax at the VU Union.
5. Anxious seniors keep track of the dwindling number of days they have left at VHS.
6. On an afternoon when most students and teachers are long-gone, light pours in through a window facing North Campbell Street.

1, 2, 3 . . . years?

Lives
like threads, touch and intersect, form patterns and are inevitably pulled apart by chance and circumstance.
Beauty is lost, but wisdom is gained as bonds are made and broken.
Those who must move on toward an unsure and fast-arriving future.
Those who stay behind
look on in envy or worry that perhaps they're too young, too confused to be leaving so soon.
The speeches made, the farewells said,
and another year comes to a close.

1. Hallways empty and the parking lot fills as 2:27 releases students from the confines of VHS.
2. A warm May afternoon prompts Ms. Margaret Phillips to do a little spring cleaning in her room.
3. On an afternoon when underclassmen are going through the rigors of final exams, seniors and Mr. Don Dick practice for upcoming Commencement ceremonies.
4. A common mode of transportation for many VHS students is the unglamorous, but economical, school bus.
5. A 17-year veteran of the VHS janitorial staff, Mr. A.W. Dickson endeavors to keep classrooms and corridors spotlessly clean.
6. For those who engage in the art of skipping breakfast, doughnuts and assorted other items are available in the cafeteria before school.

The material
the culmination of much thought and hard work, intricate and complex
while appearing to be so homespun and simple.
Some examine the cloth for flaws and technical details
while others are content to merely stand back and admire the work.
No matter how one looks at it, it's difficult not to be impressed with the beauty and unity of a design
so filled with contrasts.
The Region
overflowing with contrasts, complications, but joining somewhere along the way, and . . .
Weaving it into Valparaiso.
